DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

ATTACK ON FLAT DESCRIBED

TWO MEN REMANDED IN CUSTODY

(BEFORE MR. HANNAN.)

An attack on a flat, during which a brick was flung through a window, was described by Thomas Genocky, Block 3 C, Corporation Buildings, Dublin, giving evidence against James Ruth and Christopher Gunnery, Corporation Buildings, who were charged with housebreaking, larceny of personal belongings, value £17 14s. 9d., and damaging windows. Gunnery also was charged with damaging a gramophone and records to the extent of £3. They were also charged with demanding money by menaces from Thomas and Annie Genocky, and Gunnery was charged with having stolen a bicycle valued at £9.

Thomas Genocky, who, in a previous deposition, described how his flat was attacked on the night of June 17th while his wife, who had come into a legacy, was giving a party, and how he was stabbed and assaulted, stated that on the following day four men, including the accused men, called to the flat, and told him they would "finish the job" that night. Witness sent his wife for the police, and employed a man with a handcart to take his belongings to Store Street Police Station, where his wife was escorted by two policemen. On the way to the station Gunnery ran towards witness with a poker, and pushed a gramophone and a number of records off the cart. He returned to the flat next day, and found the place wrecked and the remainder of his own and his wife's belongings missing.

Mrs. Annie Genocky, who corroborated the evidence of her husband, stated that she had been left a legacy of a large sum of money, and the party was given in the flat by way of celebration. She stated that on the day following the party she went shopping, and was held up by Gunnery on her way home. The accused man demanded money from her. When she got a taxi to remove her belongings from the flat the accused men told the taxi-man not to take them because they were police spies. The taxi went away without her things.

The prisoners were remanded in custody.

FINE IMPOSED ON CLUB

(BEFORE MR. McCARTHY.)

A fine of £3 was imposed on the Independent Sports Club, Dublin, for having supplied intoxicating liquor between 11 p.m. and 12 midnight on May 24th, and permitting it to be consumed on the premises.

It was stated by Ernest Murray, 24 Eden quay, club secretary, that without the knowledge of the committee he had arranged for the men on night duty, who had been working overtime on the Sweep results, to have a drink in the club.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

HARD LABOUR SENTENCES

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Lawrence Connolly (25), labourer, Whitefriars street, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment, with hard labour, and Thomas Wisted (27), labourer, no fixed address, and Christopher Moran (27), labourer, no fixed address, were both sentenced to five months, with hard labour each, on charges of stealing nine cwts. of lead, valued at £9, from Newtown House, Newtown Park avenue, Blackrock, Co. Dublin, and damaging the roof of the same house to the extent of £70 between March 23 and 25 last.

Detective Officer Murphy was commended by the jury for his conduct of the case.

Mr. B. O'Donnell (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

PROTECTING PEOPLE'S MONEY

John Alison (29), Upper Pembroke street, a traveller for Richard Jones and Sons, Little Green street, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on a charge of embezzling £306 from Messrs. Jones. Alison pleaded guilty.

Mr. P. Burke (instructed by Mr. T. J. O'Hanrahan), for the accused man, said that the money had been paid back by relatives. Alison had had an excellent character, and his employers were willing to take him back if he were given a suspensory sentence.

Mr. Richard Jones, managing director of the firm, said that he was prepared to take Alison back into his employ.

Judge Shannon said that it was necessary for him to protect the interests of the people who entrusted their money to men in positions of trust. It had been stated that there was a good deal of such dishonesty in the city.

The O'Rahilly (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted.

RATHMINES MAN MISSING

Mr. Thompson is 5ft. 8ins. high; has steel grey hair, grey close-cropped moustache, round shoulders, and blue grey eyes. He walks slowly, usually wears glasses, and on the evening he left home was wearing a dark grey suit, fawn waterproof overcoat, black boots, white collar, dark tie and soft grey hat.

SUIT TO CONDEMN WILL

FREQUENT DOMESTIC DISPUTES

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE AND A JURY.)

AN action was brought by Mrs. Mary Sheehy, of Strand road, Clonakilty, to have the will of her husband, Patrick Sheehy, condemned, and letters of administration of his estate granted to her. The defendant named in the summons was James Sheehy, The Green, Dunmanway, executor of the will and brother of the testator.

It was stated that the assets of the testator were valued at about £6,000, and that, after given £50 for Masses, he left the residue of his estate amongst two sisters and two brothers. A sum of £1,600 which had been in the joint names of the testator and his wife, and had subsequently been invested in Second National Loan, was now, with dividends, valued at £1,850. This sum, which included the wife's dowry of £800, was now the wife's property.

In his will, which was dated 18th September, 1924, the testator used these words: "Whereas my wife Mary has spoiled my life and made me very unhappy, and owing to the threats of her family to take my life on her account, I leave her the sum of one shilling."

The defendant submitted that the plaintiff's statement of claim disclosed no cause of action, and he counterclaimed probate of the will in solemn form.

The plaintiff, in her defence to the counterclaim, pleaded the three usual defences in regard to the execution of the will and the capacity of the testator to make it.

Mr. Michael Binchy, K.C., Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Mr. Patrick J. O'Driscoll) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C.; Mr. H. J. Moloney, K.C., and Mr. J. Kavanagh (instructed by Messrs. J. H. Powell and Co.) for the defendant.

TWICE MARRIED

Mr. Costello said that the will was made by a well-known and long-established solicitor in Dunmanway, who had since died. The late Patrick Sheehy had been twice married, and on the death of his first wife he became entitled to house property in Birmingham, shares in the National Bank and stocks, producing a gross income of about £362 a year.

From 1919 onwards he lived on the income of that property, and no incident of comment seemed to have happened until 19th April, 1923, when, not on account of lunacy, but as a result of a drinking bout, he became an inmate of Cork Mental Hospital, suffering from alcoholic delusion. He was discharged on 18th September, 1923, completely cured, and from that time on till March or May, 1928, there was no suggestion by anybody that he was in any way suffering from insanity.

At Christmas, 1923, he met Mary O'Leary in Clonakilty, and married her in February, 1924. Very shortly after this marriage disputes started between the two, and one thing that appeared to have caused trouble about August, 1924, was a dowry of £800, which the second wife was to bring. Unfortunately the brothers and other relatives of the new wife interfered, and one of the brothers undoubtedly threatened the testator with a gun—if he did not actually fire a gun at him.

CERTIFIED AS SANE

The new wife then left her husband, and on 18th September the testator made this will. A few months afterwards the parties became reconciled, and a child was born; but disputes arose again, and differences of a very acute character developed, and on 28th April, 1926, the wife made an endeavour to have her husband declared to be a dangerous lunatic, and swore an information before a Peace Commissioner and had him medically examined; but after the medical examination the testator was certified to be perfectly sane. Not satisfied with that, she instituted divorce proceedings against him, and on 8th June, 1926, she filed her petition, alleging cruelty and drunkenness against him. The usual defence was put in, but proceedings were not continued by the plaintiff.

After those divorce proceedings were started another child was born, and the testator was not told about it by the plaintiff, and only heard of it from outsiders. In 1927 he went on a severe drinking bout, and on 12th May, 1928, he was admitted to a private hospital suffering from alcoholic dementia, caused by excessive drinking, and he remained there till the date of his death, on 25th February, 1937.

Mr. Cosgrave mentioned that, after the reconciliation in 1924, the testator added £800 to his wife's dowry of £800, and that the total sum was placed on deposit receipt in the joint names of the testator and his wife. After the testator was admitted to the mental home in Cork in 1928 he was taken under the care of the Court, and his property was safeguarded. This £1,600 was taken from deposit and invested in the Second National Loan, and now, with dividends, made a total of £1,850, which was available for the wife.

Evidence was given in support of the will, and the hearing had not concluded when the Court adjourned until to-day.

TWO DEATH SENTENCES

APPEALS TO BE TAKEN BY CONDEMNED MEN

A decision was made yesterday to lodge an appeal against the death sentence passed on Leslie George Stone, aged 24, sandpit labourer, of Heath and Reach, Leighton Buzzard, Bedfordshire, for the murder of Ruby Annie Keen, 23, of Plantation road, Leighton Buzzard.

Stone was sentenced at the Old Bailey on June 29.

The solicitors acting for Frederick George Murphy, who was convicted at the Old Bailey on Friday of the murder of Mrs. Rosina Field have lodged an appeal against the verdict.

Murphy, who is 53, is a labourer of Colebrook Row, Islington, London. Mrs. Field, aged 49, lived at Duncan terrace, Islington. Her body was found in the cellar of a furniture shop at Islington Green, where Murphy was employed as an odd job man.

After the jury returned their verdict, Murphy addressed Lord Hewart for several minutes, criticising the Lord Chief Justice's summing up.

ALLEGED BIGAMY CHARGE

ENGLISHMAN AGAIN REMANDED

George Rowbotham (23), described as an actor, who resided at The Cross, Skerries, was remanded, when he appeared before Mr. Reddin at Shankill yesterday on a charge of bigamy.

Sergeant Glynn said that Rowbotham had made a statement, in which he said that he had been married in Cudworth, Yorks, in 1935. He had lived with his wife until April, 1936, when he came to Skerries. Here he married Catherine McGuinness. He lived in Skerries until June 15 last, when he went to Kanturk, in Cork.

Sarah McGuinness, of The Cross, Skerries, said that on November 5 last she was one of the witnesses of the marriage between the defendant, whom she knew as Rowley, and her sister. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Collier.

In reply to Mr. G. L. MacGowan, solicitor, T.D., for the defence, the witness said that before his marriage the defendant had become a Roman Catholic.

Mr. T. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted.

Mr. Reddin congratulated Mr. MacGowan on his election to the Dail.

James Nelson, an ex-Service man, was charged at Belfast Custody Court yesterday with stealing £20 and other articles, the property of James Wallace, Lorton street, with whom he lodged. Accused offered to make restitution and the case was adjourned until August 9.

VETCHES AS A CATCH CROP

SOME HINTS ON GROWING

Vetches (or tares) are grown for forage or ensilage. They are valuable in possessing a high protein content, which permits of some saving in winter feeding stuffs of a similar nature. Although twelve species of vetches of agricultural value are recognised, two varieties only are commonly used in this country—viz., winter vetches and spring vetches. There is some uncertainty as to the botanical difference between these varieties.

Vetches thrive on a wide variety of soils, but a sufficiency of lime is essential to successful growth. They will thrive on poor soils and produce many times as much stock food per acre as will grass on such land.

Vetches do not occupy a defined place in a rotation, but commonly follow a cereal crop, where they act as a smothering crop to weeds of low growth. They are often utilised as a section of the catch-cropping system and, if used early, may be followed by "stubble" turnips, or the land may be cleaned and sown with an autumn cereal crop.

The utility of the crop is limited by the considerable difficulty in cutting, owing to the lax nature of the stalk, which needs some support. For this reason, when not growing for sheep folding, vetches are usually grown in combination with cereals; suitable mixtures are as follows:—

For autumn sowing on light land: vetches, 2; rye, 1. For autumn sowing on medium land: vetches, $1\frac{1}{2}$; oats, $1\frac{1}{2}$. For autumn sowing on heavy land: vetches, $\frac{3}{4}$; beans, 1; oats $1\frac{1}{4}$. For spring sowing: beans, 1; peas, $\frac{1}{2}$; vetches, $\frac{1}{2}$; oats, $2\frac{1}{2}$. (All bushels per acre.)

The most suitable proportions should be determined by local soil and climatic conditions. The crop from the spring sowing as above may be used as green fodder or converted into hay or silage; in favourable seasons it has been ripened and thrashed, the mixed grain being used for dairy stock and the straw for young, growing cattle. Peas are, however, the best legume to sow with oats for hay.

On lime-deficient land a dressing of some form of lime must be given: elsewhere vetches are able to thrive without much manuring, although maturing is earlier where the land is in good heart. On heavy soils 6 cwt. of basic slag is a suitable dressing; on lighter soils 3 cwt. of superphosphate and 4 cwt. of kainit, or its equivalent, may be applied. Nitrogenous dressings are rarely given, as they are apt to cause lodging.

Winter tares are sown from September onwards, the earlier the better, and spring tares from February onwards in succession when intended for folding or feeding green. The land is usually ploughed, harrowed down and the seed drilled, but the seed may be broadcast over the plough seam and covered by harrowing. Autumn-sown crops may be drilled on a stubble mould produced by the combined use of disc and heavy harrows: this is a method favoured by some growers of vetches for seed, but is possible only when the stubble is free from weeds. When vetches are grown alone, a usual seeding is $2\frac{1}{2}$ bush. or less; even as little as $1\frac{1}{2}$ bush. (96lb.) has produced satisfactory crops. The seed should be sown not more than 1in. deep, but must be well covered to avoid depredations by birds. The only after-cultivation needed is rolling in spring when the crop is intended for machine-mowing.

AN ANIMAL'S COAT

The coat of a dairy animal gives an indication of its general health and condition. Where the coat is smooth and sleek the animal may be looked on as thriving well, whereas a rough staring coat indicates that the animal is not as thrifty as it should be.

It is not possible to express the relative condition of the coats of calves in definite limits, so only a general statement can be given regarding this matter. It may be mentioned, however, that practical dairy farmers and research workers are able to determine the various groups by their coat condition at certain times.

At birth the coats of all calves are wet with the amniotic fluid which surrounded them before birth. Even if the calves are rubbed until relatively dry after birth the fluid remaining leaves a deposit of solids on the coats which then tend to remain rough and harsh for a time. This is particularly noticeable where the amniotic fluid is highly pigmented. This phase generally passes soon and the hair becomes sleek and smooth.

The coats of the calves on raw milk clean rapidly, and the change is almost as fast with those on colostrum for ten days and then on pasteurised milk. On the other hand, those put on pasteurised milk after only five days of colostrum have coats which generally remain rough and harsh for some time.

THE BROOD SOW

In selecting a sow for breeding one should know all about her family, average number to litter, speed in maturity, and economy in food consumption. When these points are known the sow must be judged on formation, health, markings, etc. A most important point also is the number of teats, which should never be fewer than twelve—i.e., six pairs; if less it does not matter how large a litter she may farrow, serious wastage is bound to occur because she will not be able to rear satisfactorily more pigs than the number of teats she has on her underline, since, as a rule, after the first day or so each teat is the special property of one piglet, with possibly the rearmost a communal one.

The teats should be prominent, well placed and evenly distributed. A stunted or small teat in a young gilt will be blind, or, at least, almost milkless after parturition, and hence useless; by well placed is meant that they should be within reasonable limits to the fore of the animal, for it is the front teats that usually yield the most milk.

Teats evenly distributed or spaced both ways imply that each quarter of the udder will have a fair chance of developing, whereas if two occur close together the odds are that one will eventually increase in size before and after farrowing.

WEANING THE FOAL

In some cases it may be necessary to wean the foal early, but it is a mistake to do it earlier than at four months, and the longer it can be left on the mare the better. Before being weaned the foal should be trained to eat and, indeed, eat everything in reason—green food, hay and corn and meal should be given to it, for it is particularly important that the animal should be well fed during its early life, and particularly during that rather difficult period after weaning. While the pasture is still good little hand feeding is necessary, but now that the feeding value of the pasture is reducing the feed should be carefully thought out. A little good hay twice a day and a little oats and bran make an excellent ration, and if the hay is not good a little linseed could be mixed with the oats. Other requirements for the foal are, plenty of clean water, regular exercise, light and air, and if the foal is taught to lead early in life it will help him in getting well fed and minded.

JURY WANT DRIVER REPRIMANDED

When a jury at Manchester Assizes yesterday found George William Scott (26) not guilty of the manslaughter of Denis Lloyd Jones (24), a solicitor's clerk, of Edinburgh road, Liverpool, they added a rider that he should be severely reprimanded for his apparent callousness after the accident.

The prosecution arose out of a collision between the lorry which Scott was driving and Jones, who was riding a bicycle. Scott, in evidence, said that Jones had his head down, and was travelling "pretty fast." After the collision witness lost his head, became frightened and went on home.

Mr. Justice Lewis, discharging Scott, said: "No doubt, if you were not in a state of panic, it was a most incredibly callous thing to do."

DUBLIN COUNTY COUNCIL

MR. BELTON RE-ELECTED CHAIRMAN

At the annual meeting of the Dublin County Council yesterday Mr. P. Belton was re-elected chairman by twelve votes to ten for Mr. T. Mullen. Mr. Belton has now been re-elected chairman for the fourth year in succession.

Mr. W. Rollins proposed Mr. Belton, who, he said, was like himself an old I.R.B. man. Mr. Belton was a 1916 man and worthy of any position.

Mr. R. Blake seconded the motion.

Mr. P. J. Fogarty, T.D., proposed Mr. T. Mullen, who, he said, belonged to the teaching profession, and had a national record second to none.

Mr. Sean Brady, T.D., seconded this proposal. He said that Mr. Mullen, too, was an old I.R.B. and I.R.A. man.

Mr. J. T. Ennis said that national records were not a consideration in questions of this kind or General Mulcahy would not have been turned down.

Mr. Fitzgerald supported the nomination of Mr. Mullen.

The voting on the second proposition was as stated, and, on a show of hands on the motion, Mr. Belton was declared elected.

In returning thanks he said that single-handed he had fought three organised parties, and was only just put out. If he had been in his usual health he thought that the result would have been different. The 27,000 people who had not voted at the election should be publicly censured and condemned. They were no better than the cattle in the fields, and special attention should be called to their conduct.

Mr. Mullen thanked his supporters, and congratulated Mr. Belton on his re-election. He assured him of the co-operation of his party, and hoped that there would be a little more harmony at the Board.

On the casting vote of the Chairman Mr. Morgan Good was re-elected vice-chairman of the Council. There were eleven votes for Mr. J. J. Clare and the same number for Mr. Good.

SOLICITOR IN ROAD ACCIDENT

CLEARED OF CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

A Manchester solicitor, Anthony Herbert Gardner (39), living at Vale road, Bowdon, was found not guilty of manslaughter when charged at Chester Assizes yesterday in connection with the death of a cyclist at Sale. Gardner was discharged.

The dead cyclist was Frederick Holt, railway foreman, of Brunswick road, Altrincham, who, according to the prosecution, was flung over the top of a car in which two police officers were sitting.

Mr. Rowland Thomas, for the prosecution, said that the accident occurred after a collision on a wet and windy night between two cars. The police officers taking statements were in one of the cars involved, when they heard the screeching of brakes and the sound of something being hit. A saloon car passed at a fast speed and an object, which proved to be Holt's body, went over the top of the car, and was found lying ninety feet away in the gutter.

Mr. Thomas said that Gardner was overtaken by the police a mile and a half away. He was alleged to have stated that he knew nothing at all of what had happened.

Mr. Thomas added that Gardner, a well-known solicitor, bore an irreproachable character.

In evidence Gardner, who said that he had been driving since 1913, stated that the car was getting very "rattly," and it was a very bad night. He was using side lamps, and had dimmed the headlamps. He had no recollection of seeing the cyclist, and no knowledge of the damage caused to a headlamp of his car.

Asked if there was the slightest intention on his part to bolt, Gardner replied: "If I had known that I had touched anybody I would have stopped at once."

CRITICISM OF MILK BOARD

BOARD OF HEALTH ACTIVITIES

Further references to the regulations governing the production of milk were made at a meeting of the County Dublin Committee of Agriculture yesterday afternoon, Mr. R. Blake (chairman) presiding.

A letter received from the Milk Board referred to a report of the committee in a recent issue of the Irish Times, and stated that the chairman had said that "ten of the biggest milk producers in the County Dublin had gone out of business because they could not comply with the regulations of the Milk Board," and that "he knew of a case where the milk producer had been ordered to knock down his milk shed because it was not the standard width of twelve feet."

The letter stated that, as the chairman of the committee was, no doubt, aware, the Milk Board had nothing to do with the conditions under which milk was produced, or with the construction of cowsheds.

The chairman said that it was a fact that ten producers had been forced out of business through the regulations of the County Board of Health, and not through the Milk Board, as stated. The County Board of Health was responsible also for the knocking down of the cowshed mentioned.

Mr. William Hughes said that, when he said that the Milk Board was a farce, he meant to convey that the means adopted were not sufficient to enforce the Act beneficially. The Milk Board really was one of the best things of its kind established in the county.

The bridegroom is a native of Blacklion, County Cavan, and is in command of the Engineers' Corps at Cork. The best man was Captain J. J. McNamara, and the bridesmaid Miss C. McAuliffe, sister of the bride. The Rev. H. O'Neill, C.M., officiated, assisted by the Rev. T. O'Keeffe, C.C., Cathedral. Colonel McCabe, O.C., Southern Command, was among the guests.

SHE DREADED GOING UPSTAIRS

Woman's Fear of Rheumatic Pains

Kruschen Brought Relief

One of the many troubles that afflict rheumatic sufferers is the difficulty of getting up stairs. Such was the case with this woman, before she started taking Kruschen, but now she finds it no trouble. Read what she says:—

"I have been taking Kruschen now for over 12 months, a half-teaspoonful in hot water first thing in the morning, and I feel a new woman. I had very painful rheumatism in my knees and back and also my head was getting very bad. I used to dread walking upstairs; now I am very thankful to say it is no trouble at all, and I scarcely have any pains. I don't diet at all except to eat more fruit than I used to, and yet my weight is decreasing. I was 14 stone 4 lbs. last year, now I am 13 stone 6 lbs., and I feel better in health than I have done for years."—(Mrs.) G.M.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are the most effectual solvents of uric acid known to medical science. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals, then convert them into a harmless solution. Other ingredients of these Salts have a stimulating effect upon the kidneys, and assist them to expel the dissolved uratic needles through the natural channel.

You can get Kruschen Salts at all chemists at 1/6 per bottle.

TEACHER'S LIBEL SUIT AGAINST DEPUTY

SOVIET O.G.P.U. MENTIONED

COURT REFUSES DIRECTION

DEFENDANT DENIES ALLEGATIONS

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE HANNA AND A JURY.)

AN action for damages for alleged libel, stated to have been contained in a letter written to the Irish Independent and the Irish Press, came on for hearing, the plaintiff being Mr. David Francis Courell, National teacher, Convent terrace, Pallins, County Mayo, and the defendant Sean O'Grady, Gort road, Ennis, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry for Lands.

The matter complained of was, it was stated, published on the 13th February last in reference to the controversy then in progress about the restoration of the "cuts" in the salaries of teachers in the Free State. In this letter Mr O'Grady wrote: "Of what crime had he (Mr. Courell) found me guilty when pronouncing this dread sentence upon me? Here it is, for the first time, accurately set forth by his aide-de-camp, Mr. J. D. Sheridan, editor of the Irish School Weekly, in his letter: 'Mr. O'Grady stated that the teachers had not made a case for salary restoration which would command the support of the general public.'

"That,then, is the charge upon which M. Stalin Courell and his Ogpu have found me guilty and passed sentence of political death upon me. For that awful 'crime' of expressing an opinion on the state of public feeling contrary to that of a teacher I was branded forthwith as Public Enemy No. 1. . . . Come on, then, Marshal Courell. You seem eager to force me into adopting the rôle of devil's advocate. Lead on your legions in that promised march into Clare, in which event I might oblige and burst your pretty bubble."

The plaintiff alleged that the references to "M. Stalin Courell" meant him and that "his Ogpu" meant the members of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation. He stated that the words complained of meant that he, while professing Christian religious beliefs, was a follower of or supporter of, or a sympathiser with the Bolshevic and Communist and anti-God campaign of the Government of Soviet Russia, of which M. Stalin was the head and leader; and that he, while professing a policy of lawful and constitutional agitation for the furtherance of the interests of the Irish National teachers and the redress of their grievances, was a follower or supporter of a body known as the Ogpu, which was a secret police force under the control of the Government of Soviet Russia and M. Stalin, and was a body associated in the public mind with anti-Christian, tyrannical, and murderous methods to enforce and achieve its ends and purposes; and that he had acted in a dishonest, unprincipled and discreditable manner, and was not a fit and proper person to lead or be a member of, or associated with, the Irish National Teachers' Organisation; and that he was not a fit and proper person to be employed as a teacher of Catholic children in a Catholic country, or to occupy the position of a principal of a national school, or to have any responsibility for or to be entrusted with the education, training, and religious instruction and upbringing of Catholic children.

The defendant, in his defence, admitted writing and publishing the words complained of, but he denied that they were written or published of the plaintiff as a teacher or as president of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation, or at all but of the plaintiff's method of treatment of him. He further pleaded that he published the words in good faith, believing them to be true, and without malice and that they were published on a privileged occasion, and were not capable of bearing the meaning suggested by the plaintiff.

Mr. FitzGerald K.C.; Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Little O hUadhaigh and Proud) appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Martin Maguire, K.C.; Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. K. Haugh (instructed by Mr. John S. O'Connor) for the defendant.

FASHIONABLE POLITICS

Opening the case for the plaintiff, Mr. FitzGerald said that Mr. Courell had been a member of the teaching profession since 1907, and for many years had been a member of the executive council of the Irish National Teachers' Organisation, a body which went back to 1868. He was president of that organisation in 1936 when the libel complained of was published about him. The defendant was a successful politician, and had been re-elected a T.D. for his native County of Clare a few days ago. He was telling the jury this, not because he was going to suggest that the matter they were investigating was a political one, but to make it clear that the only apparent excuse for the libel was that the letter containing it was written by one who had become so inured to the rough and tumble of politics—to the all-in wrestling type of politics which apparently had become the fashion in this country—that he had brought into this non-political matter a series of remarks which were not justified, and which were entirely untrue of Mr. Courell and the organisation he representd.

Mr. FitzGerald referred to the controversy about the restoration of the "cuts" in the salaries of Irish teachers, and said that at a meeting in Ennis in January 1937, a letter was read from the defendant in reply to a circular letter inviting him to attend, suggesting that the controversy for the restoration of the "cuts" had something of a political tinge. Mr. Courell suggested that it was hard to understand the attitude of Mr. O'Grady, and suggested that he should come down to his constituency and take the opinions of his people as to whether they agreed that the teacher in the Free State should be paid less than the teacher in Northern Ireland. The letters complained of were published in the two Dublin newspapers in the following February, in which the plaintiff was referred to as "M. Stalin Courell," and this in a country where 95 per cent. of the schools were under the control of the clergy.

"COMMUNISTIC ROGUES"

Continuing, Mr. FitzGerald said that he would put forward witnesses who would say that there was only one conclusion that they could draw from the letter complained of—that Mr. O'Grady had information that Mr. Courell and his Council were behaving like a pack of Communistic rogues, and if the jury believed that they could only conclude that this was a scandalous libel for which substantial damages should be awarded.

Referring to the defence as "most extraordinary," Mr. FitzGerald said that it amounted to an effort on the part of Mr. O'Grady to refer to speeches and letters of other people, and to treat the whole thing as if it were what might be called an "all-in wrestling bout," and plead that he was entitled to defend himself because he was attacked.

"If a man has an argument with you at the corner of a street," said Mr. FitzGerald, "he is not entitled to go round the corner and later hit you with a brick and say that was part of the argument, but that is Mr. O'Grady's idea of self-defence."

Mr. O'Grady, said Mr. FitzGerald, stated that the words used did not mean what plaintiff said they meant, and he thought that that was the only issue that the jury would have to try. Did the words mean what plaintiff said they meant—that they were a charge against Mr. Courell and his Council of being Communists? He submitted that the defendant was not entitled to the cloak of privilege of flagrant abuse, when it had taken him something like fourteen days such damages as would vindicate Mr. Courell to compose his letter after the last observation had fallen from the lips of Mr. Courell.

Mr. FitzGerald said that he asked for in the eyes of the people, and particularly in the eyes of the clergy of Ireland, who were not likely to tolerate a Communistic spirit in the teachers in their schools.

David Matthew Courell, the plaintiff, examined by Mr. Brereton Barry, said that he was principal teacher at Ballina Boys' School. He had represented the Western District on the Council of the I.N.T.O. from 1919 to 1928; was vice-president of the organisation in 1925, and president in 1936-37. During his presidency an agitation was being conducted by the organisation in connection with "cuts" in the salaries of national teachers, and it was decided to carry out a campaign for the restoration of the "cuts." It was a fact that the teachers in Northern Ireland were paid substantially more than those in the Free State. In pursuance of the teachers' agitation, a series of public meetings was held throughout the country, and he, as president, was delegated to attend in certain areas. Prominent people of every shade of opinion were invited to these meetings, and many did attend. The I.N.T.O. was strictly non-political.

Mr. Brereton Barry—In connection with this campaign for the restoration of the teachers' "cuts," were any methods ever adopted or considered which were of an unconstitutional, illegal or improper character?—Never.

Proceeding, plaintiff said that Mr. O'Grady was one of the public representatives invited to a meeting at Ennis on 16th January, 1937, and a letter from Mr. O'Grady was read at the meeting. Witness said at the meeting that he considered the letter extraordinary, and he asked Mr. O'Grady to appear on any platform in his constituency and say that the teachers of the Saorstat deserved to have lower salaries than those in Northern Ireland. He added that if Mr. O'Grady did that he would be perfectly frank and honest, but that if he was afraid to give the answer the teachers could only conclude that they had justice on their side.

"AN INTERVIEW"

Witness said that on 19th January an interview with Mr. O'Grady was published in the Press, in which Mr. O'Grady said that there was a simple answer to witness's challenge, and that, if witness believed that the teachers had overwhelming support for their demand, let him test public opinion by nominating a candidate to contest Clare in the general election. The I.N.T.O. had never nominated candidates as teachers, although teachers had been candidates. Witness replied to Mr. O'Grady's observations at a meeting at Roscommon on 23rd January, saying that the challenge to Mr. O'Grady had not been accepted and that it still stood.

Proceeding, plaintiff said that he did not belong to any political party, but he did subscribe to the Labour Party. He had tried only to advance the teachers' interests. He had opposed "cuts" by both Mr. Blythe and Mr MacEntee. He considered that the teachers had been treated badly by both Governments.

Witness said that he believed that, by the letter complained of, Mr. O'Grady meant to convey that witness was communistic or had communistic tendencies, and so had the members of his executive, and that they were using communistic methods in the campaign for the restoration of the "cuts."

Mr. Maguire objected that the jury and the Court were able to make up their minds as to what the words meant, and that the witness was not entitled, as a matter of law, to give his views upon their meaning.

In cross-examination by Mr. Maguire, Mr. Courell said that, in his letter to the Ennis meeting, Mr. O'Grady stated that he was not convinced that the teachers had made a case that would command the support of the general public, and that no Government could accede to their request unless there was a strong public demand for the action, and that he was not aware that such public feeling existed. Mr. O'Grady had never stated that the Saorstat teachers deserved to be paid smaller salaries than those in Northern Ireland.

Mr. Maguire—You threw down this challenge to Mr. O'Grady in the heart of his constituency?—It was just a passing reference; it was not really a challenge.

You threw down this challenge to a man who had never done you an ill turn?—Yes.

Of course, you expected, when you struck out like that, that Mr. O'Grady would defend himself?—I did not know what his attitude would be. I thought he might go on the platform and do it.

Further questioned, witness said that his statement was an invitation to Mr. O'Grady to substantiate his letter to a certain extent. The teachers claimed that they were unjustly treated, and Mr. O'Grady's letter implied that they were justly treated, and that was the test of it.

Asked what platform Mr. O'Grady would stand on, witness said that he supposed Mr. O'Grady's own Fianna Fail platform or any other platform.

He was to stand on his own Fianna Fail platform and make an outrageous statement against the teachers that he had never made before?—The teachers' meeting would do just as well, so far as we were concerned.

Witness denied that he went to Ennis from Ballina to challenge Mr. O'Grady. It was, he repeated, just a passing reference.

Mr. Maguire—What action were you prepared to take at the time?—We did not discuss it at the time. We might do a lot of things. For instance, we might circularise every teacher in Clare.

And the meeting which you attended on the 24th January was reported according to plan on Monday, 25th January?

Witness—What do you mean, according to plan?

Mr. Maguire—You knew it would be published?—I expected it would.

LETTERS WRITTEN

In reply to further questions, Mr. Courell said that he spoke again at a meeting in Dublin on January 30. With respect to letters which had appeared in the papers, he said it was some time after publication before he saw a letter by Mr. K. O'Kelly, secretary, Limerick branch of the I.N.T.O.

Replying to an extract from another letter quoted by counsel, Mr. Courell said that he did not think there was any chance of Mr. O'Grady ever consenting to resign. He knew Mr. Sheridan of the Irish Schools' Weekly, and Mr. Sheridan was free to write what he pleased.

Mr. Maguire—Was he not supporting your cause?—I expect he was.

Were not there hundreds of letters written on this subject?—I expect there would be dozens of letters.

Was not that what you wanted—publicity and talk, and something to ventilate your grievances?—Not at all. I do not think the letters would have much influence one way or the other.

Have you gone out against Mr. O'Grady at the recent election?—That is the first I heard of it.

Mr. Maguire then read an advertisement in the Clare Champion of June 26 calling on the National teacherr to vote No. 1 Hogan.

Witness replied that everywhere there was a Labour candidate they supported him.

Mr. Maguire—Then you are a political organisation?—No. We are affiliated to the Labour Party.

You know that Mr. O'Connell, General Secretary, I.N.T.O., replied to Mr. O'Grady on the 15th February in a letter to the Irish Independent. Is there any part of that letter with which you agree?—That is Mr. O'Connell's own personal opinion.

Who gave the instructions to issue the plenary summons in this action?—The executive of the organisation.

Without consulting you as to whether a letter should be written to Mr. O'Grady or not?—Yes.

Answering further questions, witness said that he had carried on no controversy. He made speeches, but he never wrote a line.

Mr. Maguire—Yet six days after the publication of Mr. O'Grady's letter a plenary summons was issued. Will you tell us whether you stand over that or not?—What exactly happened was that the general secretary here took counsel's opinion, and they were definitely of the opinion that the letter was libellous.

Mr. Justice Hanna—What is your information and knowledge of M. Stalin?

Witness—I understand he is head of the Communist State in Russia.

Mr. Justice Hanna—What is your information and knowledge of the Ogpu?

Witness—I believe they are the secret police of the Soviet Government in Russia.

Mr. Maguire—I object to both these questions put by your lordship. The witness has never been in Russia in his life.

Mr. Justice Hanna—I will ask the same questions of your client when he gets into the box.

NOTHING SINISTER

Mr. T. J. Cunningham, Ballynacally National School, Secretary of the Clare Committee, I.N.T.O., in reply to Mr. FitzGerald, said that so far as he was concerned in the County Clare there was nothing done by his Committee or organisation which could be regarded as sinister, underhand or Communistic.

Mr. Michael Coleman, a representative of the Southern District, I.N.T.O., and a member of the Executive of that organisation, said that he had written letters in the controversy advocating the teachers' claims, and Mr. O'Grady had referred to him as Mr Courell's "Knight Errant," and had also described him as "Rip Van Winkle."

When asked to say what he knew about Stalin, the witness said that Stalin was the head of a Communistic State in Russia whose methods he would not approve of. The meaning he attached to Mr O'Grady's letter was that the teachers were supporters of Stalin and his Ogpu.

Mr. J. T. O'Farrell, who said that he had been a member of the Free State Senate up to the time it was abolished, was examined by Mr. FitzGerald, and said that he had read about Stalin and the Russian Government. Stalin was the head of a Bolshevist State, which was Communistic in its most extreme form.

Mr. FitzGerald—What do you know about the Ogpu?—The Ogpu is the secret police or agency by which Communism is enforced, and by which people who are considered rather awkward politically are treated to third degree methods, and forced to commit crimes.

What meaning did you take out of the letter of Mr. O'Grady about which the plaintiff complains?—I could take no other meaning out of it except that Mr. Courell and his organisation were using Communistic methods—the methods of Stalin and the Ogpu to bring pressure to bear on public representatives in furtherance of their agitation.

In cross-examination by Mr. Maguire, the witness said that the Teachers' Organisation was affiliated to Irish labour, and naturally he would be pleased to see them well treated.

In reply to further questions, the witness said that he never was in Russia, but he had read a good deal about it. His view was that there existed there the minimum of human liberty, and trades' unions there did not operate as freely as in democratic countries. What he had said about Stalin and the Ogpu was subject to correction of Stalin or representatives of the Ogpu.

Mr. Maguire—You are expressing freely as a labour leader in this country your views on the head of another country and about conditions in another country?—Yes.

Without having gone to Russia first to investigate the conditions there?—I plead guilty to that.

RULING REFUSED

At the conclusion of plaintiff's case, Mr. Maguire, for the defendant, applied for a direction on the grounds that the words complained of were no libel in their ordinary meaning, and that they were not capable of the meanings alleged by the plaintiff. He asked the Court to rule out the innuendos as not being capable of the meaning put upon the words, and submitted that it was disclosed, upon the plaintiff's evidence, that Mr. O'Grady was acting in self-defence on a matter of public interest in which he had been attacked in his public capacity; that he was entitled to defend himself, and the occasion was privileged and the words were privileged in the absence of express malice. He asked for a ruling that there was no suggestion of any evidence of express malice, which was negatived by the evidence of the plaintiff himself, who said that he had never seen Mr. O'Grady until he saw him in Court. The plaintiff admitted the public nature of the controversy and its importance, and he admitted the various matters set out in the defence.

Mr. FitzGerald, opposing the application, said that there was evidence before the jury that the words used were clearly defamatory. Fair comment was pleaded, but a direction had not been asked for on that plea.

Mr. Justice Hanna said that he would not give any ruling at present.

Mr. Maguire, opening the case for the defence, said that he had been entirely at a loss to understand the case until the end of Mr. Courell's cross-examination. The attitude of Mr. Courell was quite unintelligible until he disclosed the remarkable fact that he had not given instructions for the action at all; that the instructions were given by the I.N.T.O., and he revealed to the Court what was really at the bottom of it all—that it was not Mr. Courell's case, but was the case of this powerful organisation of 11,000 or 12,000 members.

Mr. Courell had not suggested, said Mr. Maguire, that he had lost a single pupil from his school, or that the parish priest had done anything other than take off his hat to him, or that he was likely to lose a single pupil, or had been hurt or damaged in any way by what was complained of. He had launched this action without warning, without taking the course that every prudent litigant took, by having inquiry made as to what was the meaning of the words now complained of. Mr. Courell's organisation, thinking that, in the welter of this correspondence and among the hard things that were said and the hard blows that had been struck, they had caught out Mr. O'Grady, slapped out this writ in an attempt to get damages against him.

As to the idea of referring to Mr. Courell seriously as a Communist or a national teacher as a Communist, no human being in the country in his senses and with any sense of humour would take up an observation of the kind seriously. It should be remembered that Mr. O'Grady was simply going about his ordinary business as a member of the Dail.

"Mr. O'Grady has nothing on earth against the teachers," said Mr. Maguire. "In his whole life he has never said or done a thing against them. On the contrary, he will tell you that, even up to this moment, he is most friendly and favourably disposed towards the teachers and towards their cause. But, as a public man, he has his duties and responsibilities, and, while he favours their attitude upon the question of falling averages, he has to take up the attitude—which he took up fearlessly and without equivocation—that he did not think they had made a sufficient case for the restoration of the salary "cuts." The meaning of his letter to the Ennis meeting was that he was sorry that he could not support their attitude on the latter matter, but that he was wholeheartedly with them on the other question. Mr. Courell then proceeded to challenge him right away.

"ORGANISED CAMPAIGN"

Continuing, Mr. Maguire said that the whole business was inadvertently started by Mr. Courell by the silly challenge issued to Mr. O'Grady. The one outstanding feature through the whole of it was that the Irish National Teachers' Organisation was conducting an organised campaign for the purpose of the restoration of the salary cuts. The campaign was being organised from headquarters against Mr. O'Grady and anybody who stood in their path. It may not have been intended by Mr. Courell, but the organisation wanted to sweep the opposition away. On the face of it there was no libel at all. The suggestion that it was a libel was ridiculous—the letter was nothing of the kind. The reference to the Ogpu was not intended to apply to Mr Courell or to the organisation.

Mr. Courell was referred to, not as a preacher of the doctrines of Communism, but as a man who had usurped to himself a right of sentencing Mr. O'Grady to political death. He was surprised that an attempt had been made to try to bamboozl them into the belief that the letter represented Mr. Courell, not as a dictator, but as an apostle of the anti-Christian theories of Communism. It was an insult to try to read into the document something that was not there.

Concluding, Mr Maguire asked the jury to hold that this was no libel at all; that in its plain and obvious meaning it simply referred to Mr. Courell as a dictator, and that it was within the rights of all who were attacked to say that the person who had attacked them was a dictator. He would ask them to say that the meanings which had been put upon the letter were meanings which it was not capable of bearing and which it did not bear, and that it did not bear the suggestion that Mr. Courell was a Communist. On the question of malice, apart from there being any evidence of that, they would be satisfied beyond doubt that Mr. O'Grady had no malice against Mr. Courell. On the contrary, he would tell them that he was most sympathetic towards the teachers and that he had many members of his family who were teachers, and he would tell them that if he could see his way to support them on the salary cuts he would do so.

The further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

At Ballymena Crown Sessions yesterday, Mr. F. Martin, assistant deputy clerk of the Crown and Peace, informed Judge Bates that there were no criminal cases for hearing, and that the jurors who had been summoned had been notified not to attend. The Judge was presented with white gloves.

CONGESTION IN COLLEGE GREEN

RELIEF FROM NEW BRIDGES

COLLEGE RAILINGS TO REMAIN

THE removal of the railings outside Trinity College, Dublin, to relieve traffic congestion was again discussed by the Dublin Corporation last night, and dropped.

The matter arose when the Corporation discussed a recommendation by the Town Planning Committee of the Corporation that no action be taken about the removal of the railings.

The Acting City Manager read a letter from Assistant Commissioner Brennan, Garda Siochana, saying that the Commissioner was disappointed that the Council's recommendation to remove the railings had been postponed indefinitely. "The Commission," the letter stated, "is satisfied that the improvement of traffic conditions at College Green is an urgent necessity, and, while the moving back of the College railings would not solve every aspect of the difficulty, it would effect a much needed improvement at a relatively small cost." The trouble at College Green, added the letter, was due to insufficient road space, and, as traffic there could not be diverted to alternative routes, the only remedy would be to set back the railings. Alternatively, one of the suggestions was that a footway should be cut through the railings with suitable ornamental openings. This would permit of the present footway being taken in, so as to widen the carriageway. While this appeared to the Commissioner to be a possible solution, the Commissioner was of the opinion that nevertheless the ultimate and only satisfactory solution would be to set back the railings.

THE NEW BRIDGES

Alderman E. Benson, Chairman of the Town Planning Committee, stated that the letter omitted to mention an important effect that might follow from the provision of the proposed new bridges in the city. It was quite possible that the removal of the railings might detract from the artistic effect of College Green. The curved railings outside Trinity College balanced the curved railings of the Bank of Ireland. If one of them was removed and it was subsequently found that the new bridges reduced the volume of traffic it would be a matter of grave regret to the citizens that these two frontages had been marred for a very temporary benefit. That was why the Town Planning Committee had suggested that nothing should be done at the moment.

Mr. D. Healy said that the new bridge at the East Wall road would take a lot of the traffic now passing through College Green, and furthermore there was to be a new alternative traffic route between Dame street and the quays.

The report was approved.

CITY BUILDING DISPUTE

CORPORATION ACTION

The Lord Mayor (Alderman Alfred Byrne, T.D.), at last night's meeting of the Dublin Corporation, read a letter from Mr. T. Kelleher, director, Saorstat Eireann Federation of Building Trades Employers, referring to the building trade strike. The letter stated: "There is no change in the situation at the moment. We are in close touch with the Minister for Industry and Commerce, and he will avail himself of any and every opportunity to resume conference."

The Lord Mayor suggested that the Acting City Manager should get into touch with both parties in an effort to bring them together. The Corporation should not allow this matter to drift. People were waiting for houses.

The Acting City Manager (Mr. J. P. Keane) said that it might be as well if he received the support of some members of the Corporation.

The Lord Mayor said that that could be arranged after something had been done to bring the parties together. A day should not be wasted in this matter.

It was agreed that the City Manager should approach the parties to the dispute.

EFFICIENT CRIME DETECTION

BENCH TRIBUTE TO ANTRIM POLICE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

Lord Justice Andrews, at the opening of the County Antrim Assizes in Belfast to-day, commented upon the record detection of crime in the county, which amounted to 88 per cent. of the specially reported cases. Congratulating the police and the Grand Jury on the gratifying condition of the county, Lord Justice Andrews said that he hoped that peace, good-will and good feeling would long continue. "The police," he said, "usually are very modest in their work, but it is my duty to say that of the 57 cases of specially reported crime, persons have been made amenable in no less than 49 cases, giving what in my experience is a record detection of crime of 88 per cent."

His Lordship said that the county was in a perfectly normal, orderly condition, and there was a total absence of all organised crime. There was a very good spirit of tolerance and forbearance existing between all creeds and classes and sections. Nothing in the report impressed him more than the fact that all parties and people of all creeds united so loyally in the celebration of the Coronation in May. They were to be honoured this month by a visit from Their Majesties, which they trusted would be the first of many visits to their shores.

The Assizes were opened with customary ceremonial. The judges drove to the courthouse, where a military guard of honour was mounted.

Robert Owens collapsed yesterday afternoon at Fraser street, Newtownards road, Belfast, when returning to his work. He was found to be dead on admission to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

IRISH TEAM FOR BISLEY

WEDDING OF IRISH MAGISTRATE

MR. IAN RAWDON GREENE AND MISS E. T. STACK

The wedding took place on July 1st at St. Luke's Church, Milland, Hants., of Ian Rawdon Greene, B.A., LL.B., barrister-at-law, Resident Magistrate of Zanzibar, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Rawdon Greene, of Rahan, Bray, County Wicklow, and Eileen Theodora Stack, elder daughter of Commander A. E. Stack, R.N., of Treloen, Liphook, Hants.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. Eyres, Vicar of Longmoor, grand-uncle of the bride, assisted by the Rev. C. E. R. Sinclair, Rector of Ashfield, Cootehill, County Cavan. The best man was Mr. Gordon Greene, cousin of the bridegroom. The bride was given away by her father. During the ceremony a sermon was preached by the Rev. F. Eyres.

The bride wore a dress of white satin, tinged with pink, and a tulle veil to match, with a headdress of orange blossom. The five bridesmaids were the Misses Carrie Young, Jacqueline Hope, Vivien Stack, Pamela Phillimore and Kathleen Oulton. Master Edmund Phillimore and Miss Felicity Johnston acted as pages. The bridesmaids wore dresses of blue and silver chiffon, with pointed collars, puffed sleeves and headdresses to match.

The church was beautifully decorated with gladioli. The bride carried a bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley, and the bridesmaids pale pink carnations.

A reception at Treloen was attended by a large number of guests. The bride and bridegroom afterwards left for the Continent.

TOUR OF LIFFEY VALLEY

PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY'S OUTING

On Sunday the members of the Photographic Society of Ireland made an extensive special 'bus tour of the Liffey Valley, when the members took full advantage of the beautiful weather to take many pictures. Visiting Poulaphouca they saw the site of the proposed water power development scheme, and then went on to Ballymore-Eustace, and from there to La Touche Bridge, where an al fresco lunch was taken by the side of the river.

Kilcullen and Newbridge were visited, and the course of the river followed to Victoria Bridge; then through Naas to Sallins, Clane and Clane Abbey; thence to Straffan, returning home in the evening by Celbridge, Leixlip and Lucan.

The usual informal meetings of the society held every Friday evening for discussion have been well attended. At the last meeting the Hon. Secretary, Mr. F. R. A. McCormick, gave a talk on the subject of exposure, and exhibited a collection of exposure meters which included most of the modern photo-electric types, the use of which was explained.

The following House Sub-Committee has been elected: Messrs. M. C. James, C. A. Jones, D. C. Miller, E. T. Tuckey, A. J. S. Moran, B.A.I.; J. W. Roch and Miss Ursula Glynn.

NEW SHEEP-DIPPING ORDER

IMPORTANT ALTERATIONS

The Minister for Agriculture has made a new Sheep Dipping Order which replaces the Sheep Dipping (Ireland) Order of 1915 and its amending Orders and comes into operation on 1st August next. The Order substitutes for the former "Summer" and "Autumn" dipping periods one double-dipping period in each year extending from 1st August to 31st October, and for the former "Market Periods" one such period extending from the 1st September to 31st October. During the latter period sheep may not be moved into or exposed for sale in any fair, market or saleyard unless they have been double-dipped as prescribed subsequent to the preceding 31st of July and are accompanied at the time of such movement or exposure by a declaration of such double-dipping or such other documentary evidence thereof as may be prescribed in regulations made by the local authority concerned.

The essential object of this new Order, as of the Orders it replaces, is the prevention and eradication of sheep scab, a disease the control and eradication of which is of paramount importance to the Saorstat sheep industry. As hitherto, the local authorities will have ample means under the Orders to ensure the freedom from scab of all sheep in their respective districts.

It is a matter of great importance that all sheep-owners should, from time to time, carefully examine their sheep for indications of scab. If there is any suspicion of disease the case should be reported without delay to the local Garda Siochana, so that the suspected animal may be examined as early as possible by a veterinary inspector of the local authority. Prompt measures taken in this way would prevent the spread of disease with resultant serious losses.

Mary Smith (41), Wilton square, North, Belfast, received burns when lighting a fire on Sunday. She was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

A Comedy of Errors : Toronto's "Shoe-Shine Parlours" : "P.R." in New York : Mr. J. H. Humphreys : Irishmen at the English Bar

A Political Philosopher

Had there been no other signs that a general election was in progress last week a visit from Mr. J. H. Humphreys would have put me wise to the event.

For the moment I forgot exactly how many P.R. elections we have had, but on all such occasions Mr. Humphreys has arrived on the scene to hold a watching brief for a system of which he is recognised to be the world's most authoritative exponent.

He is supposed to be a P.R. fanatic by those who have only met him at election times, but he is far from being the victim of a mere obsession. His range of knowledge and interest in international politics is quite unusual, and by no means academic.

As we wandered in our talk from New York to Geneva, and from Buda-Pesth to Tasmania, I found that he had made "on the spot" studies of political personalities and constitutional systems in most of the world's storm centres. When I add that the "cantonal" constitution of Switzerland appeals to him as a model which Irishmen should study, I am sure that he will not hold me guilty of an indiscretion!

A "P.R." Voting Machine

Our chat turned next to the big test to which the "single transferable vote" is soon to be submitted.

Judging from some of the figures which Mr. Humphreys mentioned—counting and transferring as many as half a million ballot papers in single constituencies of New York city—it occurred to me that some of our returning officers (not Dr. Sherlock or Mr. McCracken!) might speed things up a bit in future elections if they could take a trip with Mr. Humphreys to the Statue of Liberty next fall. With characteristic American enterprise and originality experiments are to be made with a kind of "penny in the slot" contrivance, which will automatically register, count, check and classify voters' "preferences."

But most interesting of all to me were the contents of a brochure in which the Citizens' Union of New York have set out the programme of civic revolution which they hope to carry through, with P.R. as its electoral basis. City planning, the appointment of an auditor-general, "pay as you go" budgets, new building laws, and many other reforms are all in a picture, the background of which is largely the results of P.R. in Saorstat Eireann!

How interesting it will be if the creators of Tammany Hall prove to have shown New Yorkers the way to better methods of civic government!

"P.R." and Plainsong

Among those who will breathe specially deep sighs of relief when ballot and plebiscite papers are snugly tucked away in their steel boxes—only to be re-opened in the very unlikely event of a successful election petition—will certainly be Mr. Wilfred Browne who is to count and certify the numbers of "Ayes" and "Noes" pertaining to the Draft Constitution.

On many previous occasions he has added the duties of Returning Officer for Senate elections to his official responsibilities as "engineer in chief" of P.R. contests, and as court of appeal to which all sorts of knotty points have to be referred.

Yet, when I met him in the middle of all last week's excitements, nobody seemed to be more placidly detached from official worries or political affairs. Had we found time to talk about his organ and choristers at Phibsborough, or to discuss the delights of plainsong or of the Gate Theatre, I am sure our talk would have been much more enlivening!

Such pleasures, however, must wait for less crowded days!

While You Wait

A Canadian friend tells me that he is getting a "kick" out of strolling the streets of Dublin comparing Canadian customs with ours. One thing he misses here, and that is the "shoe-shine parlour."

His own town of Toronto, he says, is well catered for in this respect. These parlours are a great boon to Canadians. It is customary to slip into one of these shops and sit in a chair, just as you would in a hairdresser's, while an attendant hands you a paper and gets busy on your shoes. In a few minutes you walk out with your footwear shining brilliantly—all for five cents.

Canadians are likewise faddy about their clothes, so they have a clothes pressing service as well. In most of these shops there are dressing-rooms, where you can wait while your suit is being pressed You can sit there reading or smoking, and in a few minutes you are given the suit splendidly pressed.

Not all of the shops, however, carry on a "pressed-while-you-wait-service." A customer walked into one of them some time ago. He was much annoyed when he was told that he would have to call back for his suit, when it would be ready for him.

He insisted that, being pressed for time, he could not call again. Then he had a brain wave. "Say," he said, "could I not stick around here while you do the suit? You could cover me with sheets of paper." The proprietor was compelled to decline the invitation.

Irishmen Elsewhere

I noticed that at a recent big murder trial in England leading counsel for the Crown was Mr. Richard O'Sullivan, K.C., and leading counsel for the defence Mr. Maurice Healy, K.C.

I could not help wondering how it was that the handful of Irishmen at the English Bar get on so well in that select profession.

The junior Treasury counsel at the moment, for example, is Mr. Valentine Holmes, who is a graduate of Dublin University and a former auditor of the Historical Society.

His predecessor in his office—which implies the handling of all Government legal business—was Mr. Harold Murphy, now a leading King's counsel, who is also a graduate of Dublin, and likewise an ex-auditor of the Historical Society.

Other Irishmen who have "made good" at the English Bar are Mr. Hector Hughes, K.C., and the late Mr. Martin O'Connor.

And, of course, there was Lord Carson.

Drops in an Ocean

A friend has calculated that in the interval between the dissolution of the Dail and the reassembly the State will have saved the magnificent sum of £4,590.

Deputies are paid £30 a month, but £360 a year is not a princely salary for public representatives. They get free travelling facilities, of course; yet six pounds a week goes quickly from, say, a popular member of the House who is generous to the constituents visiting him at Leinster House. I would not be surprised to learn that deputies' salaries will be increased on the recommendation of the Commission to investigate salaries of Ministers and the leader of the Opposition.

Incidentally my friend, making further calculations, has found that by the reduction of the number of Dail seats from 154 to 138 the State will save £5,760. But that saving, perhaps, will be swallowed up by new officials—or maybe it will help to pay the salary of the new President, the amount of which has yet to be fixed.

Misinterpreted

So often our actions for good are misinterpreted.

Yesterday morning a friend of mine, dressed in an old pair of trousers and a shabby woollen jacket, without collar or tie, was using an old open razor to cut off young sprouts on a hedge in front of his house, which adjoins the public road in a Dublin suburb. He had made good progress, and stopped to take a rest near the road gate.

A woman walking up the road saw him leaning over my gate, and, to judge from the expression on her face, immediately concluded that he had committed, or was about to commit, a murder with the razor. She faltered for a moment, and then dashed across the road, but kept looking around while she walked hurriedly away.

Now he has invested in a fine pair of clippers.

FILM NOTES

"Song Writers on Parade"

British Film Stars Composers : Jack Buchanan as Producer : Charles Laughton's "Rembrandt"

BY A. E. M.

AN original idea has been selected by a British company for its latest film. The title of the film is "Song Writers on Parade," and it will include all the most popular writers singing or conducting their own songs. The story of the film re-creates the way in which many of these song-writers climbed into popular regard, and it shows some of them actually singing their own compositions in the streets for the pennies of the sympathetic pedestrian. In this film the public will hear the songs that have been made familiar on screen and wireless by others sung by the people who wrote them.

With many of these song-writers plain luck held sway; with others years of hard work lies behind their popularity. The film will present some of the astonishing events in their varied careers, before publishers and wireless combined with the cinema to give them fortune. Among the song-writers appearing in the film, whether singing or merely making an appearance in a sequence introducing their songs, are Jimmy Kennedy, Michael Carr, Horatio Nicholls, Annette Mills, Fred Godfrey, Ralph Butler, Arthur Le Clerq, Harry Carlton and Jose Norman.

Charles Laughton in "Rembrandt" at the Savoy.

Kennedy and Carr

Everyone who frequents the cinema knows the songs of Jimmy Kennedy and Michael Carr, the most successful song-writing combination in British films. This pair has been responsible for some of the greatest song "hits" in the cinema, including "The Leader of the Band," "I'll Step out of the Picture," "There's a New World," and "Did Your Mother Come From Ireland?" They have very prominent parts in the film, and they will sing some of the songs they have written in collaboration. Each of them will also sing a medley of the numbers they have written individually. Jimmy Kennedy will sing "Roll Along, Covered Wagon," "Play to me, Gypsy," "Isle of Capri," "Red Sails in the Sunset" and "Harbour Lights." Michael Carr will come with "Dinner for one, please, James," "The Wheel of the Wagon is Broken," "Old Faithful," and "The Sunset Trail."

All the most popular songs of recent years—from "Blighty" to "Angel of the Great White Way"—will be heard in the film. The background of the story is laid in the area about Charing Cross Road, in London, which is the home of the music-publishing business, and it is that atmosphere in which the film is being made. It is being produced on a big scale, with lavish settings and an excellent cast.

Buchanan Producing Films

Another interesting bit of news is that Jack Buchanan, who has hitherto been known as a singing and dancing star of stage and screen, has entered upon the perilous business of producing films. It was only a few weeks ago that Jack Buchanan formed his own producing company, and started work at the Pinewood Studios at Iver Heath. One film has already been completed; another is well on its way towards completion, and in the course of the year five films are to be released. Two of these are to be directed by the famous French producer, Rene Clair. It is hoped that the production of this new company may be doubled next year. In one of the Rene Clair films Jack Buchanan will appear opposite Adele Astaire, sister of the famous Fred. The second of the Rene Clair films is to be in colour, as will also be the film version of the notable play, "Richard of Bordeaux," in which John Gielgud will appear as Richard.

These ventures of British-producing companies indicate a new policy in the studios. It would seem now that British studios are to follow the example of Hollywood, taking talent wherever it may be discovered and using it upon British material. An outstanding example of this is the employment of Anna Neagle to play the part of Queen Victoria in "Victoria Regina," which is now nearing release.

Television Success

For the first time the entire television programme from London has been perfectly received at Coventry, nearly ninety miles away. This is more than three times the official reception range, and is the greatest distance at which television has yet been satisfactorily received. Reception at this distance was by a standard receiver, with some small modifications, and with the use of an ordinary standard aerial assembly.

An "Old Master"

Lives of great men may not always have the effect of reminding us "we can make our lives sublime," but some of them offer splendid material to the cinema. One such is to be seen this week at the Savoy Cinema in Alexander Korda's re-creation of Dutch seventeenth century life in "Rembrandt." Rembrandt Harmens van Rijn, known to the world simply as Rembrandt, is generally recognised as the greatest of the Dutch artists, but it is not so much his art as his amours that give sparkle to the film. He married at the age of 28, was a widower eight years later, and after his wife's death he fell into a condition of acute depression. It was at this period that the three women whose love inspired his genius entered his life. Charles Laughton is at his best as the robust artist of Amsterdam and Leyden. His rise to fame, his bereavement, and his bankruptcy are all conveyed to the screen by a master actor. Laughton is magnificently supported by the famous stage actress, Gertrude Lawrence, and by Elsa Lanchester. "Rembrandt" is a film not to be missed on any account.

At the Astor Cinema "Romeo and Juliet" continues to be one of the most attractive of current films. Norma Shearer is at her best as Juliet, with Leslie Howard an ideal Romeo. This is a film to be seen, and it is in its fifth successful week.

Pirate-Deliverer

How a man who was mistaken for a pirate becomes the hero of the people among whom he was cast, and incidentally the deliverer of their village from an army of scallywags, is vividly presented in "Dancing Pirate" at the Grafton Picture House. Charlies Collins appears as Jonathan Pride, a dancing instructor, who is shanghaied and then captured by pirates. In Southern California his ship is to attack the coast villages, but he escapes. He is mistaken for a pirate and sentenced to death, but is pardoned on condition that he teaches the chief's daughter to dance. How he brought rescue to the villagers, and release from the domination of a rascal, makes a very entertaining film. Frank Morgan plays the rascally Alcalde of Las Palomas.

At the Theatre De Luxe Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea will be seen in "Banjo on my Knee" for the first part of the week. From Thursday the films to be shown are "The Great Barrier," with Richard Arlen, and "Girl Overboard," with Gloria Stuart.

At the Theatre Royal the film to be shown is a thrilling story of love and adventure in the South Seas. As it is based upon a story by that master story-teller, Somerset Maugham, "Isle of Fury" will be certain to prove of unusual interest to large numbers of patrons. The cast includes Humphrey Bogart, Donald Woods and Margaret Lindsay.

Cole Porter Music

That the film at the Capitol Theatre has music by that very popular composer, Cole Porter, will be sufficient inducement to bring queues about the box office. The story of "Born to Dance" is concerned with the love affairs of a couple of sailors who visit a dancing club in New York. It is not, however, the story that matters in a film of this kind—and it may be said at once that the dancing and singing are all that might be desired. There are more than 250 dancers, and nearly as many singers and instrumentalists, in the film, and it will be an additional inducement that Miss Eleanor Powell introduces no fewer than fourteen varieties of dance steps. "Born to Dance" is just the film for the holiday mood. Its numerous songs will be heard from the drawing-room wireless receiver and the butcher's boy at the door before many weeks have passed.

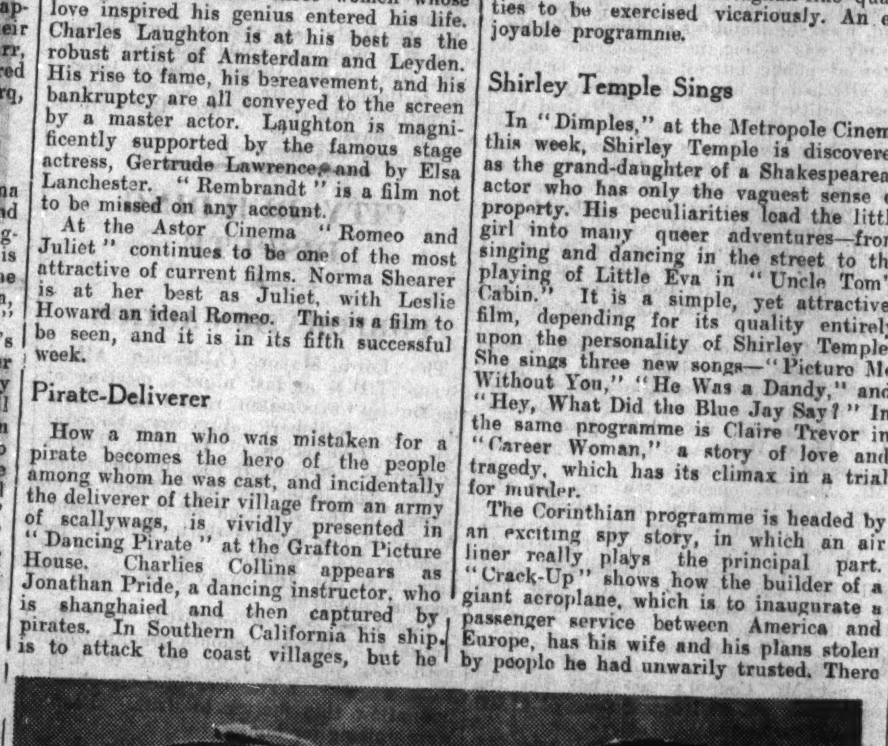
At the Stephen's Green Cinema will be found a double-feature programme, consisting of "Absolute Quiet" and "Gay Adventure." "Absolute Quiet" holds more than a little irony in its title, as anything less quiet could hardly be imagined. The film is really a dramatic story of an aeroplane crash, with all the ingredients of a first-class melodramatic entertainment. In the cast is that extremely amusing personality, Stuart Erwin, with the fine London stage actor, Lionel Atwill, in prominent support. In "Gay Adventure" is a diverting farce gathered about a young man who has been led to believe himself a descendant of the famous D'Artagnan. It is comparatively easy to see how the Dumas masterpiece lends itself to parody, and in this film the parody is cleverly contrived. When a vivacious young widow is the lady in distress all the cavalier instincts of the pseudo-musketeer rise to her defence, and when the widow is none other than Yvonne Arnaud members of the audience may also discover D'Artagnan-like qualities to be exercised vicariously. An enjoyable programme.

Shirley Temple Sings

In "Dimples," at the Metropole Cinema this week, Shirley Temple is discovered as the grand-daughter of a Shakespearean actor who has only the vaguest sense of property. His peculiarities lead the little girl into many queer adventures—from singing and dancing in the street to the playing of Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." It is a simple, yet attractive, film, depending for its quality entirely upon the personality of Shirley Temple. She sings three new songs—"Picture Me Without You," "He Was a Dandy," and "Hey, What Did the Blue Jay Say?" In the same programme is Claire Trevor in "Career Woman," a story of love and tragedy, which has its climax in a trial for murder.

The Corinthian programme is headed by an exciting spy story, in which an air liner really plays the principal part. "Crack-Up" shows how the builder of a giant aeroplane, which is to inaugurate a passenger service between America and Europe, has his wife and his plans stolen by people he had unwarily trusted. There are thrilling scenes as one of the party in the aeroplane clings to its wings, and also when the machine crashes. "Laughing at Trouble" is a most fascinating story of crime detection, in which Jane Darwell plays a leading part.

At the Grand Central Cinema the excellent film, "San Francisco," with Jeanette MacDonald, Clark Gable and Spencer Tracy, is being shown. For the first part of the week the principal film at the Pavilion Cinema, Dun Laoghaire, is "Millions," with Gordon Harker. It is supported by "Postal Inspector," with Ricardo Cortez. The film to be shown at the Queen's Theatre this week is "Join the Marines," with Reginald Denny.



Eleanore Powell and Una Merkel in "Born to Dance" at the Capitol.

IRISH AUCTIONEERS' MEETING

DELAY TO BILL BEFORE THE DAIL

Among the important matters discussed at a general meeting of the Irish Auctioneers' and Estate Agents' Association in the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, were the offering of lands and properties for letting and sale by persons other than auctioneers, the question of scale of fees, and the arranging of lectures and debates.

Many members expressed keen disappointment at the protracted delay of the Government with regard to the bill now before the Dail. The hope was expressed that the measure would receive the early attention of the Government during the next session. Appreciation of the untiring efforts of the Parliamentary Committee was expressed by many of the members present.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the House Agents' Committee on Friday, 23rd July, 1937, at the Registered Offices of the Association, 23 Lower Ormond quay, Dublin, at 4.30 p.m.

Votes of condolence were passed with Mr. Henry Connolly, President, on the death of his niece, and with Mrs. Canavan, Crossmolina, on the death of her husband, a valued member of the Association.

The President, in his opening remarks, thanked the members for their attendance, which, he said, left no doubt as to the progress and virility of the Association.

There were present:—Messrs. William J. Prior to the general meeting a council meeting was held at which Mr. J. Malcolm Watters (J. M. Watters, F.A.I., and Sons), Milford, County Donegal, was elected, on the motion of the President, seconded by Mr. D. P. Hoey, Vice-President.

The Council express regret at the loss of Mr. Archibald Trainor (O'Reilly and Trainor), Bailieboro', County Cavan, who has retired from auctioneering, and expressed the wish that he would be spared many years to enjoy his retirement.

It was decided to hold the August Council meeting on 4th August.

NEW FREE STATE STAMPS

ISSUES IN THE AUTUMN

The Free State's new half-crown postage stamp will not be issued until the autumn, an Irish Times reporter was informed yesterday.

This stamp will be on sale at the same time as the new five-shilling and ten-shilling issues.

A confession (says a Reuter Los Angeles telegram) that he murdered the three little girls found strangled in the hills near Inglewood, California, last week, has been made, the police allege by Albert Dyer, a man employed by the Works Progress Administration. Dyer is at present under arrest.

ROTARY CLUB CEREMONY

INVESTITURE OF THE PRESIDENT

Mr. T. A. Grehan, out-going vice-president of the Dublin Rotary Club, was yesterday invested with the badge and chain of office as president for the coming session. The ceremony, which took place after the weekly luncheon of the Club in the Metropole Restaurant, was performed by the outgoing president, Mr. R. J. Keatinge, O.B.E.

Remarking that he had done everything possible during his period of office to promote friendliness, Mr. Keatinge said that that friendliness was only a means to an end. That end was the Rotary ideal service.

After calling on Mr. Grehan and investing him as president, Mr. Keatinge drew attention to the collar, which is inset with 26 pieces of pure gold, each bearing the name of a former president of the Club.

Returning thanks, Mr. Grehan said that Mr. Keatinge had done everything that it was possible to do for Rotary during the past twelve months. The year which was opening would, he said, be full of interest both for this country and for Rotary. The Dublin club—the first club in Europe—had been founded in 1911, and during that time had passed through difficult times and fair times, but never had lowered the flag of Rotary. (Applause.) The membership of the club—standing at 150—was not large enough for such a large and internationally known city as Dublin, and expressed the hope that the figure would be 200 before his year of office was over.

Mr. Richard White, senior past president, said that Mr. Keatinge had worked day and night for the club, and had done everything to make his year of office a great success. He welcomed the new president, and mentioned that he was one of the few founder members left.

The following past presidents also spoke:—Mr. F. M. Summerfield, Mr. Walter Beckett, Sir Thomas Robinson, Mr. George Clampett, Mr. Patrick Montford.

At the outset Mr. Keatinge welcomed six Rotarians from the United States, and also a party of Rotarians from the Isle of Man. The latter party included Mr. T. R. Radcliffe, editor of the Isle of Man Examiner, and a former member of the House of Keys.

Crowley, T. (F.F.)	4,544
O'Shaughnessy, J. J. (F.G.)	4,361
O'Connell, T. (F.G.)	3,537
Fraher, Liam (F.G.)	3,339
Lloyd, T. (Far.)	1,343

As a result of the transfer of Mr. Keyes's surplus, Alderman Bourke (F.F.) was elected with 8,506 approximately.

On the fifth count Bennett was elected with a total of 8,956. O'Connell was then eliminated, but no one was elected on the distribution of his preferences.

Bennett's surplus was transferred on the seventh count, and O'Shaughnessy was elected with 8,441 votes.

On the elimination of Crowley, Colbert was elected with 9,578 votes, a surplus of 1,387, of which 693 votes were non-transferable.

RE-COUNT DEMANDED.

When Colbert's surplus of 1,387 votes was distributed, Ryan's total was raised from 7,536 to 8,026; Reidy's from 7,872 to 7,902, and O Briain's from 7,079 to 7,946. This was to have been the last count, but as the two Fianna Fail candidates, O Briain and Ryan, who would have been elected, had less than the quota, Reidy demanded a re-count.

The re-count left the position unchanged. O'Briain and Ryan, both of them Fianna Fail, were elected, without having obtained the quota, to the sixth and seventh seats, and Alderman Reidy (F.G.) was defeated by 42 votes. Representation in the constituency remains unchanged.

"IRISH TACTICS" URGED

ENGLISH LABOUR M.P. AND MILK PROBLEM

"GREATEST SCANDAL OF OUR TIME"

MR. RAMSBOTHAM, Minister for Pensions and former Under-Secretary for Agriculture, moved a resolution in Committee in the House of Commons last night, extending by twelve months the provisions of the Milk Act, 1934, as amended by the 1936 Act, which would otherwise expire on September 30th next. He stated that he was not at present able to give an indication of a more permanent policy. The established cost of the extension would be £500,000. To allow the 1934 Act to lapse would have an immediate and disastrous effect on the producer and bring to an end the milk-in-schools scheme.

Mr. T. Johnston (Lab.) welcomed the continuance of the subsidised milk scheme for children in schools, but said that he found it exceedingly difficult to describe in language that would be within the rules of the House the criminal policy of organised high prices.

INFLATED PRICES

The milk scheme at present was organised deliberately to inflate prices to the poor consumer and to subsidise a non-economic price to wealthy manufacturers.

He asked the Government on what grounds they charged mothers and babies in the distressed areas and elsewhere two shillings a gallon for milk when they agreed that it was necessary on health grounds to enable children from the ages of five to fourteen years to have their milk at one shilling a gallon.

"Irish tactics should be adopted to draw public attention to the greatest scandal of our time," he declared. Farmers were in distress because they could not sell their milk; the poor were in distress because they could not buy it, and the Government were doing their utmost to divert the liquid milk supply into manufacturing processes.

PERPETUATING HUNGER

His party would not vote against the resolution, but he hoped this would be the last occasion on which the Minister would try to defend a system which perpetuated hunger and starvation in the midst of plenty. If he did so again, he (Mr. Johnston) hoped that it would be met with hoots of derision and the most strenuous opposition.

Sir Francis Acland (Liberal) deplored the continued inability of the "powers that be" connected with the milk industry to find a means of getting more liquid milk consumed at a price that would be sufficiently remunerative to the farmers to take milk off the list of factory products.

Mr. Croom-Johnson (Conservative) urged the desirability of increasing the consumption of liquid milk, ont only by children, but by adults, who he thought did not drink half enough of it. In the course of repeated visits to the United States he had been struck by the health and size of young people of all classes in the schools, and he was satisfied that that arose from the excellent supply of liquid milk that was available at almost every place one went to.

PASTEURISATION

Mrs. Tate (Conservative) said that it was time that a really impartial inquiry was held as to the relative value of pasteurised and unpasteurised milk all over the country. Milk was served in an unappetising way, and they should spend more money in advertising the right method of serving it.

Mr. Quibell (Labour) said that he had had experience as a manager of a dairy and he had come to the conclusion that it was very doubtful what the advantages of pasteurisation were. He believed that its great use was for the purpose of taking out dirt that ought never to be in the milk.

Mr. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, in replying to the debate, said a great deal of the difficulty connected with the disparity of milk prices arose from the fact that they imported large quantities of milk products at low prices. That made their milk problem different from that of any other country. Taking milk and all milk products together the charge in that country was extremely low. Liquid milk was sold in Sweden at three halfpence because more was charged there for their butter and cheese. If liquid milk was sold in Great Britain at the same price the consumers of butter would have to pay eleven million pounds a year more.

The resolution was agreed to.

SYNTHETIC PETROL INDUSTRY

FORECAST BY SOUTH AFRICAN MINISTER

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

CAPE TOWN, Monday.

A national petrol industry for South Africa, with a public utility company engaged in producing petrol from coal, was foreshadowed in a recent speech at Maritzburg by Mr. Oswald Pirow, Union Minister of Railways and Defence.

He declared that the proposal had been put forward by semi-State interests, "supported by some very responsible people, indeed."

Mr. Pirow was replying to the oil companies, who have threatened to raise the cost of petrol by another penny unless the railways reduce their petrol freight charges. Last year the Government sacrificed £500,000 by taking a penny off its Customs charges on petrol, but the companies failed to pass the benefit on to the consumers. They said that they had been selling at such a loss before that a penny made little difference to their position, and asked for more.

In his speech the Minister declared that he was confident that a synthetic petrol industry could produce nearly half the country's requirements at the present price of petrol, so that even if the oil companies retained the greater part of the market they would be forced by competition to reduce their prices to the lowest level. South Africa has no natural oil resources, and geologists hold out no hope that any will ever be found.

CATTLE SMUGGLING IN TYRONE

MANY ANIMALS SEIZED AT DERRY

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

OMAGH, Monday.

The seizure of a large number of cattle at Derry quay on 3rd April last had a sequel at Omagh Petty Sessions to-day when Patrick Collins, Coneywarren, was prosecuted for dealing in eight uncustomed cattle, and an application was made for the condemnation of 38 head of cattle.

Captain W. H. Fyfe, M.B.E., prosecuted, and Mr. George Murnaghan for the defendant.

Sergeant Stewart Castlederg, gave evidence of tracing cattle tracks from the Free State into Northern Ireland at Ballyfolliard, and followed them to the farm of Thomas Collins, a brother of the defendant, a distance of two miles. While there defendant arrived, and witness informed him of tracing the cattle from the border, and defendant said that all the cattle were genuine and had been paid for. He denied that they had been smuggled. Witness permitted the cattle to be sent to Derry and later witness went to Derry and found that 28 cattle had been sent from Omagh. Witness seized 53 cattle, but 15, which were identified later, were released.

Patrick Collins said that none of the cattle purchased by him had been smuggled, and Thomas Collins said that he purchased several cattle for his brother in Northern Ireland.

A large number of witnesses were examined to prove that they sold cattle to the defendant and his brother.

The Court made an order for the condemnation of 20 cattle and, as there were two previous convictions of smuggling against the defendant, the Court imposed a fine of £100 in the case of the eight uncustomed cattle.

UNDELIVERED BROADCAST TALK

B.B.C. EXPLANATION

The B.B.C., through their Bristol headquarters, gave the Press Association an official statement last night to explain why the talk which was to have been broadcast the night previous by Mr. E. R. Appleton did not take place. Mr. Appleton had been director of the West Regional from its inception until his resignation in April. The statement read: "Mr. Appleton was asked to modify a few sentences in his talk, but found himself unable to do so. We tried unsuccessfully to get in touch with him to-day. The only point on which we wished to insist was that he must not give the address of the office of the new movement which he is promoting.

"These particulars were included in the text he sent us and would have been a breach of the rule which limits appeals on any cause or movement to Sunday evenings.

"We did not feel that we could possibly relax this rule in favour of a speaker who has only just left the B.B.C.'s service. It would have looked too much like favouritism."

Mr. Appleton was to have spoken about the Silver Cord, the movement which he has launched since leaving the B.B.C., and the objects of which are to unite more closely the English-speaking nations.

DEARER BREAD IN CORK

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

CORK, Monday.

The price of bread in Cork was raised this morning by a halfpenny. This is the second fluctuation during the last month, the price having been lowered on June 14th by a halfpenny.

The increase has taken place following an order by the Minister for Industry and Commerce fixing the standard price of the 280 lb. sack of flour at 51s.

The new price of the batch loaf is 10d. over counter and 11d for fancy bread, and there is an extra charge of 1d. for delivery.

TRINIDAD STRIKE LEADER

REWARD FOR ARREST

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PORT OF SPAIN (TRINIDAD), Monday.

The Trinidad Government to-day offered a reward of £100 for information leading to the arrest of Uriah Butler, alleged organiser of the oil field strikers in the island, on a charge of incitement to murder.

Uriah Butler escaped from the dawn round-up at the village of Fyzabad by 200 armed police, supported by marines, on Friday, when 30 arrests were made.

Thirteen of those arrested have been charged with the murder of the British inspector, William Bradburn, and a local corporal. The others have been charged with inciting to riot.

The Governor (Sir Arthur Fletcher) made public yesterday a message to the people of Fyzabad, regretting the inconvenience caused by the round-up, but stating: "It is necessary that those responsible for the murders of members of the Constabulary should be arrested."

The strike situation to-day is quiet.

GIRL RESCUED IN SEINE

AMERICAN JOURNALIST'S BRAVERY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

Hearing shouts of "Girl drowning; save her," from a large crowd on the bank of the River Seine, in Paris, to-day, John Campbell, 27-year-old picture editor of the Los Angeles Daily News, on holiday in Paris, plunged into the water and rescued a young Austrian girl, Fraulein Bartl, aged 22.

Campbell, a good swimmer, managed to reach the girl, who was unconscious, and began to swim shorewards with her, but near the bank he found the current too strong for him. A fishing boat which had put out to Campbell's aid took him and the girl ashore.

Fraulein Bartl was hurried to a first-aid centre, where artificial respiration was applied.

A G.N.R. engine at Carrickmacross which was to take the 3.20 p.m. train to Inniskeen on Saturday became derailed when crossing from the shed siding to the main line. A number of cars were requisitioned to take passengers to Dundalk for connections there, and other passengers waited for the later service to Inniskeen.

WORLD FRIENDSHIP CONFERENCE

HOUSE OF COMMONS QUESTIONS

Mr. Arthur Henderson, in the House of Commons yesterday, asked the Prime Minister if he was aware of the joint statement issued by President Roosevelt and the Belgian Prime Minister in relation to the work of re-building international trade co-operation in monetary matters and the reduction of armaments; and if he would offer the co-operation of His Majesty's Government with a view to the summoning of a World Conference or otherwise facilitating the attainment of such objectives.

Mr. Chamberlain said that the answer to the first part of the question was in the affirmative. With regard to the second part he referred Mr. Henderson to a previous answer.

Mr. Henderson—In view of the fact that the international situation is steadily deteriorating, does not the Prime Minister consider this to be an urgent matter, and will he not approach President Roosevelt with a view to assembling such a World Conference?

Mr. Chamberlain—I think it is a superficial view to assume that you can solve different problems in the world merely by calling a World Conference. Such a conference must be preceded by very careful preparation.

OTTAWA AGREEMENTS

Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal Opposition, asked if the Prime Minister's attention had been called to an article in the journal, Foreign Affairs, by the Economic Adviser to the Secretary of State in Washington, in which he pointed out that the real obstacle to an agreement of this kind was the fixed margin of preference under the Ottawa Agreements.

Mr. Chamberlain replied that he did not agree with that conclusion.

Mr. Lansbury (Labour) asked whether the Government were taking any preparatory steps to bring about such a conference—whether it was a World Conference or a more limited conference.

Mr. Chamberlain—The Government have shown their willingness to co-operate for the purpose mentioned in the question both by entering into a tripartite monetary agreement and also in conjunction with the French Government in asking the Belgian Prime Minister to make a series of inquiries about which I am hoping to hear from the Belgian Prime Minister himself this afternoon.

Mr. Lennox-Boyd (Conservative) asked whether it was not a fact that this country in the last five years had bought £350,000,000 more of manufactured goods from America than they had bought from us.

Miss Rueben Brodie, of 12 Grove place, Rathmines, Dublin, was knocked down by a motor car and taken to the Meath Hospital suffering from concussion and other injuries. Her condition is not regarded as serious.

QUEEN'S THEATRE

Eileen Phelan and Jimmy Hardson brought down the house last night at the Queen's Theatre, Dublin, with their ability as exponents of Irish dancing. Theirs was one of a series of very good turns. As usual, the Moonbeam ballet gave bright and pretty shows of skilled rhythmic stage dancing. Ho and Bo were very amusing in the comical use of strange instruments, from which they coaxed good music. Revill and Syd, new style comedians, also gave a good account of themselves in song, patter and dancing acts. Mr. Alex. C. Fryer and the Queen's orchestra were responsible for enjoyable interludes, and a happy, romantic film, "Join the Marines," sent folks home feeling they had enjoyed a good time at the Queen's.

A Desperate Remedy

The British Government is resorting to the last desperate expedient. It proposes to partition Palestine. The Royal Commission which visited the Holy Land after last year's disorders will issue its report this week, and a forecast of the recommendations—obviously dictated on excellent authority—appears in the Daily Telegraph. It appears that the Commission has reached a conclusion which every normal student of Palestinian affairs has reached long ago—namely, that the whole matter of the Jewish National Home has been bungled sadly, and that no reasonable way exists out of the dilemma. Many British Governments have made blunders, but never, perhaps, has any of them blundered so wantonly as in the case of Palestine. Since the first shipload of Jews came from Poland or the United States to be pioneers of a race's return from exile, there never has been real peace. Even when the Arab residents have refrained from violence, their tranquillity has been sullen; and, far too often, it has blazed forth into riot and outrage. Last year's civil war—the outbreak almost could be so described—was the terrible climax of many years of growing dissatisfaction. Numerous lives were lost; property to the value of millions of pounds was destroyed; a new barrier of hate was erected between Arab and Jew. It was only with difficulty that a strong force of British troops contrived to restore even the semblance of peace, and even to-day nobody believes that the semblance will be maintained for long. The problem of Palestine's peace has been complicated of late by the wiles of Italian agitators, who have done their best to use the resentment of Arab resident against Jewish immigrant as a lever for the weakening of British power in the Near East. Precisely what is happening in Palestine is not clear; but it looks as if the turmoil of recent years has given birth to a new movement—or, rather, to two new movements. Nationalism has become a lively force among the Palestinian Arabs, and simultaneously they have gained a new awareness of their community of race with the rest of the Arab-Moslem world. An Arab State of Palestine, linked in an Arab Federation of the Near East, seems to be their ambition.

The problem of Palestine, in fact, is becoming a problem of the whole Near East, and must be solved with all possible speed before the anger of the Arabs there promotes a holy war. Whether the new British plans will solve it is extremely doubtful. The Royal Commission proposes to divide Palestine into three States. The Jewish State will extend over the greater part of Northern Palestine, including the whole of Galilee and a long strip of the coast. Great Britain will receive a permanent mandate over the cities of Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth, and over the "corridor" from Jerusalem to Haifa—which latter, presumably, will involve control of the Mosul oil pipe-line. The rest of Palestine, together with Transjordania, will form the Arab State. Neither State will be completely exclusive in respect of population; for the Jewish State will harbour a considerable number of Arabs, while the Arab State will include several Jewish communities. In essence, however, the scheme means the separation of Arab and Jew into two racial enclaves. Until it comes into effect the British Government will continue to administer the country at large; and, even after the partition, it almost will require to exercise a close watching brief. Arrangements will be made to compensate the Arabs for the removal of a large number of their fellows from Palestine proper to Transjordania; and treaties will be necessary to ensure that there is no trouble about the transit of one State's goods by rail through the other State's territory. This partition is, in the Royal Commission's view, the only way out of the present difficulty. It confesses to have toyed with ideas of "cantonisation," and to have considered a restriction of Jewish immigration; but it does not think that either expedient would go to the roots of Palestine's problem. We merely can hope that partition will not go so deeply to the roots as to destroy whatever small hope remains of peace.

One difficulty, admittedly, may be overcome by this herding of the two communities into different States. They will be unable to fly at each other's throats, and the British Government will be required less often to step in and restore the peace. Otherwise, we doubt if it will improve the position in the slightest degree. There are signs already that both Arabs and Jews intend to oppose the plan, either by "constitutional" means or by violence. The Jews resent it because it limits what they deem their promised right to enter Palestine without let or hindrance. They already have obtained possession of much of the best land in the southern part of the country—the territory of the new Arab State—and have no desire to leave it and confine themselves within the northern area. The Arabs have even more definite ideas on the subject. They hold that Palestine is theirs, and that, if it was outrageous that Jews should be admitted there at all, it is intolerable that half the land simply should be cut off and handed over to the stranger. The result, as we think, can only be to increase the bitterness prevailing in the Holy Land. Almost certainly it will give a new impetus to the strivings of the Arab Nationalists, and will strengthen the movement for a "pan-Arabia" in the Near East. The scheme is worse than useless; yet, unhappily, there is no alternative that can be effected without a gross breach of faith to the Jews of the world. Palestine's entire post-War history is a tragedy of errors, beginning with a colossal blunder; and the process of the years has made matters worse instead of better. Nothing can be done that will not mean an injustice either to the Arabs, who were there first, or to the Jews, who have been encouraged by a solemn pledge to conceive Palestine as their National Home. Surely, however, there is some expedient that would be less dangerous than this project of partition—some expedient that will permit Arab and Jew to live together without loss of "face." Anything would be better than this acknowledgment of an impasse.

Paul Morphy

A few days ago there passed unnoted the centenary of the birth of Paul Morphy. If the late Hugh MacNeill had lived till now some Irish tribute would have been paid to the memory of that remarkable man; but our living chess-players either lack a pious regard for the past masters or have been occupied too much with the chess-board of politics to remember the milder, if more purely intellectual, battlefield. Morphy was, if not the greatest of chess-players, at least the greatest in his own time, and the first exponent of principles which have been the basis of later greatness. He was an American. His Irish-seeming name has caused many to assume that his genius came from our own country. Nostra culpa; we ourselves fell into this error in a leading article some fourteen years ago. The encyclopædia informs us, however, that the champion's father was a wealthy Spanish immigrant, Alonzo Morphy, who won eminence as a jurist and legislator; his mother was of French origin. A slender patriotic hope remains. Can it be that the Spanish family of Morphy was of Irish origin, like the family of O'Donojú or that of Morán? However that may be, Paul Morphy now belongs to the world. At the age of ten he learnt the moves of the game from his chess-loving parent, and within two years the boy was champion of his native city of New Orleans. While still at school he defeated the Hungarian Löwenthal, author of many classic games. He studied with the Jesuits of Alabama and was admitted to the Bar at the age of 21. That was in 1858. In the same year he visited Europe, where he astonished all. In 1859 he was ranked as the virtual champion of the world, although he failed to meet Staunton, the English holder of that title. At this time he defeated six out of eight French champions, playing simultaneous games against the team with his eyes blindfolded. Brilliant, but brief, was this strange career. Morphy returned to America, was frustrated in his legal pursuits by the Civil War, and failed, in the succeeding years of peace, owing to the breakdown of his intellect. The mental prodigy became a mental wreck—perhaps, a warning against the over-exertion of the brain in youth. For a time Morphy was confined in an asylum. He died at the age of 47, just fifty-three years ago. His achievement was to teach a simple, yet historic, departure in chess methods. Until his time, even master players followed the convention, which most of us as dilettantes still observe, to reply to a given opening with a given defence for possibly a dozen moves. Morphy broke with the custom of the gambit. With him attack or defence might follow different plans of campaign. He designed his own battle, developed a strategic position on the board rapidly and with small regard to incidental losses. One of his greatest victories saw the early sacrifice of a queen, and he would begin cheerfully with a handicap of a bishop and a pawn. Who can guess what this brain, a mathematical prodigy, might have achieved if it had been devoted to warfare, like Napoleon's, or to statesmanship or economics? Perhaps, Paul Morphy was happier in dying guiltless of his country's blood—or tears.

Friend or Foe?

To us in Ireland, whose relations with our "ancient enemy" habitually are so good, the attitude to one another of certain sworn friends and allies in Central Europe seem somewhat strange. Our politicians make great play of our blood feud with the English. They depict our unfortunate people as bond slaves, struggling in vain to free themselves from the shackles of servitude; but off the platform, as it were, they can enjoy themselves with the hated Saxons as well as anybody else. When an English football or tennis team comes to Dublin and defeats the local players the spectators applaud the victors, who are entertained afterwards to a convivial dinner at which everybody enjoys himself immensely. When an Irish team goes to England and is successful the crowds yell themselves hoarse; only about a week ago the Irish jumping team carried off some of the major prizes at Olympia, where they were welcomed as conquering heroes. These exhibitions of mutual regard are mere commonplaces in the relations between two nations, which, we are told, are secular and deadly enemies. How different are conditions abroad! Austria and Italy are closely allied. Signor Mussolini has constituted himself protector of the little Republic, and Dr. Schuschnigg, the Austrian Premier, works in the closest possible concord with the Palazzo Venezia. Politically it is a case of David and Jonathan; but the Central European does not live by politics alone—however frequently he may die by them. On Sunday the Genoese "soccer" team travelled to Vienna to play the Austrian Admira XI. in the Central European Cup. There were 45,000 spectators, and, apparently, almost as many police. All went fairly well, although the crowd manifestly was parti pris from the start, until a penalty kick was awarded to the Admira team. A goal was kicked, and the man who kicked it was so delighted that he cocked a snook at the discomfited Italians. The nearest Italian, one Andreolo, could not stand this insult to his country, so he promptly hit the Austrian in the jaw. Then both teams let themselves go. The police kept the ring, preventing the spectators from encroachment on the playing pitch while the twenty-two players went for one another, tooth and claw. One Italian got a kick in the mouth which made a nasty mess of his dentures. Another was removed unconscious on a stretcher, while two ambulances were called into service to take the casualties to hospital. History does not record the name of the winning team; but the Italians certainly seem to have come off second best in the free fight. One wonders what would happen if Austrians and Italians should find themselves on the same side in a war. Political friendships are almost as deceptive as political animosities.

John Underwood

Mr. John Underwood has died in Massachusetts at the age of 80; yet his name will continue to shine before men possibly for hundreds of years to come. In the motor-car industry there are names like Austin, Morris, Ford, and many others which long since have lost their personal significance, and now seem to represent only the names of motor cars: in the matter of typewriters the names of Underwood and Remington have become synonyms for the machines themselves. John Underwood was born in London. He was a pupil of Michael Faraday, and became a chemist, with a flair for invention. It was he who invented the first practical visible typewriter; and for all we know that first typewriter may have changed the whole social order of our world. In the days before Underwood had presented his discovery to London's business houses the correspondence of every business was attended to by craftsmen, who penned decorative and somewhat verbose missives with many a flourish of the quill. The typewriter at first was regarded with horror by the more conservative houses. It was impersonal, cold, and even impolite; but gradually the advantages of its speed and simplicity became too important to be disregarded. The craftsman and his quill began to disappear, and in his place appeared a young woman, with a pronounced pertness of manner, and the ability to dash off a dozen letters while the scribe would be preparing his bottle of ink, his blotting pad, and his pen. Women had stormed the previously monastic fortress of commerce, and they entered by the breach that the typewriter had made. They took care to make the typewriter peculiarly their own, and themselves thus indispensable. Perhaps it is that their smaller hands and more supple fingers are better calculated to manipulate the keys; but certainly the male, in competition, looks slightly absurd, and proves himself to be a negligible opponent. Now, in the premises of every business in the world there is at least one woman, who sits at a desk from nine until six, and clatters away with confident and occasionally inexhaustible energy. It would be unwise to tell her that she has the job, because it is unworthy of the male intelligence. She has such a telling reply.

FUTURE OF PALESTINE

COMMISSIONERS' REPORT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

JERUSALEM, Monday.

The report of the Palestine Commission and a statement on British policy are being broadcast from Jerusalem on Wednesday at 9 a.m.

British, Arab and Jewish owners of wireless sets are arranging "listening-in" parties for the occasion, in anticipation of which there is an atmosphere of tense expectancy.

Partition is generally regarded as certain to be among the recommendations in the Commissioners' report.

Among the questions which may arise out of the report is the position of British officials who would be affected by any proposal to diminish the area of direct British administration.

General Sir G. A. Weir, Commander-in-Chief of the British troops in Egypt, paid a visit to Palestine during the week-end, where he met Mr. William Battershill, Acting High Commissioner of Palestine, and Lieutenant-General Sir John Dill, Commander-in-Chief of the British forces in Palestine.

The Arab Higher Committee met urgently this evening to consider the secession of the Arab opposition party, headed by Ragheb Nasha Shibi, ex-Mayor of Jerusalem from the Committee.

A manifesto was issued urging the maintenance of the national front at the present hour of emergency for the Arab cause.

The Mufti of Jerusalem, who returned specially from a visit to Syria, presided at the meeting.

The decision of the Arab opposition party to leave the Higher Committee was announced on Saturday. The reason is understood to have been internal differences, which arose principally over the question of partition.

LONDON LETTER

MISS BRIDGET BOLAND

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

LITTLE came of the inquiry in the House of Commons to-day by Sir William Davison regarding the murder of Miss Bridget Boland, governess to a Spanish family in Bilbao, who is said to have been shot by extremists. Sir William wished to know what action the British Government had taken, and with what result. Mr. Eden, who was most sympathetic in manner, said that he understood that the Irish Free State Government were making inquiries. Sir William Davison asked whether the British Government did not recognise the necessity of securing the safety of British citizens, no matter from what part of the Empire they might come. Mr. Eden agreed to this, but added that he understood that the Irish Free State had a representative in Spain.

General Franco and Volunteers

In diplomatic circles to-day rumours continued to the effect that a compromise will be suggested at the meeting of the Sub-committee of the Non-Intervention Committee to-morrow, not by Germany and Italy, but by a group of the smaller Powers. In any event, opinion seems to be general that there will be some kind of agreement on the Spanish question before the end of the week, though it is admitted that the question is one full of difficulties. Naval control, in one form or another, is likely to be continued, while the latest statement by General Franco that he does not wish to retain any foreign volunteers should help to remove one of the most troublesome causes of complaint. It is possible that General Franco is beginning to realise that his foreign allies are not all that he could desire—particularly as the Italians are said to have become somewhat arrogant of late.

Danger to Shipping

The Board of Trade has sent out a warning to British merchant ships stating that Spanish insurgent men-of-war are watching near Santander, and that there may be a risk that these vessels will attempt to capture ships trying to enter that port. This follows upon the capture of the French merchant-man Tregastel by one of General Franco's warships. It was stated some time ago that protection would be given to British ships on the high seas up to the limit of territorial waters, but not beyond, and the French Government announced this afternoon that it can take no action in connection with the Tregastel, as it was captured in territorial waters. The ship is laden with food and supplies provided by French Communist organisations, and directed to the Communist Party in Santander. Another interesting event to-day was that permission has been given by General Franco to British members of the Orconera Iron Company to return to their headquarters. It is possible that this may be the prelude to an announcement that iron-ore, much needed here, will soon be shipped again from Bilbao.

The Royal Yacht at Cowes

The King and Queen will not be attending Cowes this year, but after the Royal Yacht Victoria and Albert has returned to Southampton with the King and Queen, following their State visit to Belfast, it is probable that the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester will go on board, and remain in the Solent for some days. The Duke of Gloucester, like his late father, is a keen yachtsman, and has raced at many of the south coast racing centres. The news will give great pleasure in the Isle of Wight, where it has been feared that the week would be robbed of much of its glory by the absence of the Royal Yacht. The King and Queen will not go to the seaside for a holiday this year, as they intend to spend the late summer and early autumn at Balmoral Castle.

Italy Attracts the Tourist

Competition between France and Italy to secure a greater share of the tourist traffic is becoming keener, and the depreciation in the value of the franc is arousing much attention in Italy. There is little prospect of a devaluation of the lira, but it is possible that steps may be taken to attract tourists by reducing the valuation of the tourist lira, which is available only for those making a limited stay in the country. By this means there will be less reason for tourists to visit France for the benefits of the cheaper franc. Efforts are being made to encourage the development of Italy for holiday purposes, and in view of the restrictions upon the taking of currency out of Germany more attention is being devoted to the attraction of tourists from this country.

A Curious Paradox

It is a curious thing that while Italy wants British tourists its wireless system continues to pour out streams of vituperation upon Britain and all things British. It might be supposed that this would have an effect on the treatment accorded to British visitors, but it has not, and English people who have been on holiday in Italy assure me that they have been received with marked courtesy everywhere. The ordinary Italian attaches little or no importance to political broadcasts. Mr. Peter Hutton, who has been on a visit to Italy, writes in the Nineteenth Century this month that during his stay he had never received nor heard of any other English man or woman receiving a hard word or a bitter look, and this in spite of all the propaganda and artificial hate manufactured by the authorities. England has, humanly speaking, only one enemy in Italy, but, unfortunately, he is the only Italian whose voice, radiated in a thousand forms and disguises, is allowed to be heard.

Guns Over Gibraltar

Questions are to be addressed to the Secretary for War in the House of Commons shortly asking for information regarding the fortification by German military experts of the coast line adjacent to Gibraltar with the mounting of guns commanding the fortress. It is understood that there are three big guns of German manufacture mounted overlooking the Bay of Algeciras, and these are of such power that they could smash the harbour to pieces in half an hour, while, concealed as they are in the hills behind Algeciras, they would be very difficult to put out of action from the Gibraltar batteries. Should the Nationalists win the civil war General Franco will be invited to remove the guns, and it is said that the British Government has already received assurances on this point.

DEATH.

FURLONG—July 5, 1937, at Newbawn House, Newbawn, Wexford, Katherine Mary Furlong, beloved wife of Michael J. Furlong, Temple Scoby. Funeral leaves Newbawn House for Davidstown Church, 4 p.m. (old time) to-day (Tuesday). Office and High Mass at 11 o'clock (old time) to-morrow (Wednesday). Interment immediately afterwards.

Three persons were slightly injured when a King's Cross to Harrogate express train was involved in a mishap just outside the London terminus last night. The train was at a standstill between two tunnels when a light engine, coming to its assistance, ran into the rear coach. A number of passengers in the last two coaches complained of cuts and bruises.

HISTORIC FLIGHT BEGUN

CALEDONIA LEAVES IRELAND

BLAZING THE TRAIL OF A REGULAR SERVICE

MR. DE VALERA'S FAREWELL TO THE CREW

EASTWARD JOURNEY ALSO BEGUN

FROM OUR AIR CORRESPONDENT,

FOYNES, Monday.

THE Empire flying boat Caledonia took off from here at 7.57 o'clock to-night on her maiden survey flight across the North Atlantic Ocean. At the last moment there was a change in the personnel of the crew, and Wireless Operator J. H. A. Lewis was replaced by Mr. Thomas Valette, a radio engineer who was with the Marconi Company.

I understand that the change was made as Mr. Valette has done a considerable amount of research work in connection with the new direction-finding apparatus which is fitted to the Caledonia.

Although rain fell heavily here for most of the day, the weather reports received at the Meteorological Station were good, and promised fair weather for, at the least, the first 500 miles of the flight.

It was still raining when Mr. de Valera and officials, including Mr. A. Gauge, the man who designed the Caledonia and all her sister ships of the Empire class, arrived. With Mr. Sean Lemass, Minister for Industry and Commerce, they went out to the Caledonia and inspected it.

When they returned ashore they bade the pilot and the crew God-speed. The Mayor of Limerick, Mr. Daniel Bourke, handed cigarette cases, inscribed with the Limerick Arms, to the crew as they stepped into the launch which took them off to their flying boat.

LEAVING THE WATER

The crew was aboard over an hour making final adjustments before the moorings were cast off, first the starboard, then the port. The engines roared into life, and the 20-ton flying boat moved slowly down the channel between the mainland and Foynes Island. As it passed the quayside a cheer broke from the great crowd which the occasion had attracted, not only from all over the county, but from Dublin as well.

The American Minister, Mr. Alvin M. Owsley, and the Legation Secretary, Mr. George Armstrong, were among those who arrived just in time to see the Caledonia, followed by a small fleet of launches, with Mr. de Valera and his son Vivion on board one of them, pass into the choppy water and the main channel.

Suddenly the note of the engines changed into a terrific roar as the full power of their 3,600 horse power came into action. Spray dashed over the great 114 foot span of the wings as the flying boat ploughed forward. Just forty seconds after the throttle was opened the Caledonia left the water, and its Atlantic flight had begun.

For a few minutes Captain Wilcockson held his "ship" at about 50 feet above the water, then he climbed a little, and we watched the aircraft gradually become smaller and smaller, until it disappeared westwards towards Kerry Head and the Atlantic.

Before the Caledonia had left the water a radio flash from Port Botwood told us that the Pan-American Airways Sikorsky Clipper would leave Port Botwood for Foynes at 11.25 (Irish time). It should be here about noon to-morrow, and the Caledonia should arrive at Port Botwood at about the same time.

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS

After the Caledonia has reached Botwood—a distance of just under two thousand miles—she will proceed to Montreal and then visit New York, a total distance of 3,223 miles.

The Caledonia changed to short wave at 9.15 p.m., and a message was received indicating that she was making good progress. Signals came through at good strength.

THE CAPTAIN'S PLANS

After making tests of taxi-ing the aircraft over the Shannon this morning without taking it off the water, Captain Wilcockson and his navigator, First Officer Bowes, came ashore, and just before going in to the conference to decide on to-night's take-off they told me something of their plans for navigating the Caledonia across the Atlantic.

"We shall fly a rhumb line course, instead of the usual great circle route," said Captain Wilcockson. "Actually it is about thirty miles longer, but we think it is easier, because the great circle course means eight or nine alterations of course. During the night we shall set out on a compass course of 264 degrees magnetic, and as we fly westwards adjustments will be made to compensate for the change in the magnetic variation from true north, and at the end of the journey our course should be about 234 degrees magnetic."

THE CROSSING

Hitherto most of the trans-Atlantic flights have been made along the great circle course, and the decision to fly on a rhumb line is important, since this is the first really scientific survey flight that has been made across the North Atlantic Ocean.

"We expect to be about fifteen or sixteen hours on the journey," continued Captain Wilcockson, "and we anticipate a head wind of about 30 miles an hour for the first hundred miles or so. After that it should decrease somewhat.

"For 400 or 500 miles we shall be in touch with Foynes on the medium wave radio set, then we shall go over to the short waves and contact both Foynes and, we hope, Port Botwood at the same time. If everything goes well we should also be able to make contact with the crew of the Sikorsky Clipper, which we shall pass somewhere in mid-Atlantic."

FORCED LANDING "O.K."

The arrangements for this flight have been made in such a business-like fashion that I hardly liked asking about arrangements in the event of a forced landing out in the Atlantic.

"Oh," replied Captain Wilcockson quite cheerily, "that is O.K. We have all S.O.S. arrangements complete, and there is a fixed wireless aerial on board, together with a two-stroke engine to generate the necessary power for radio work over 200 or 300 miles if we are forced down on the water."

Captain Wilcockson, who is forty-one years of age, said good-bye to his wife at Southampton yesterday. She will be kept advised of the progress of the flight in her Croydon home by the head office of Imperial Airways. Chicken sandwiches, flasks of coffee, and tinned food will form the diet of the four members of the crew on the way to Newfoundland, and an added dish is a special chocolate cake made for twenty six years' old First Officer Charles H. Bowes by his aunt. Incidentally, Bowes is the only one of the crew to have a good-luck token with him. It is a gum-tree leaf sent to him by his fiancée, an Australian nurse.

THE LUNCH

MINISTER'S GOOD WISHES

From his chat with Press representatives Captain Wilcockson went straight to the conference which considered the meteorological reports and decided that the flight would start to-night. He was there about half-an-hour and then went off to the Free State Government's lunch in a corrugated iron shed on the quayside. The Minister for Industry and Commerce (Mr. Sean Lemass) presided at the lunch, which was also attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Francis Shelmerdine, Director-General of Civil Aviation, British Air Ministry; Mr. Ivor McClure, Operations Department British Air Ministry; Major Entwhistle, Chief Meteorological Officer, British Air Ministry; Mr. Maurice Banks, British Air Ministry, and Major R. H. Mayo, Aeronautical Adviser to Imperial Airways, who is also the designer of the Mayo composite aircraft—the pick-a-back seaplane which is regarded as another likely solution to the problem of operating regular mail and passenger services across the Atlantic.

PROGRESS OF TWO FLYING BOATS

7.55 p.m.—Caledonia left Foynes.
9.15 p.m.—Caledonia reports good progress.
10.10 p.m.—American Clipper left Newfoundland.
10.52 p.m.—Caledonia 350 miles from Irish coast.
11.30 p.m.—Clipper 100 miles east of Botwood.
12.25 a.m.—Caledonia 650 miles out from Ireland—more than quarter of way across.
12.25 a.m.—Clipper making steady progress.
12.30 a.m.—Caledonia reports: "Darkness now complete.
1. 0 a.m.—Caledonia 51.40 N., 23.22 W.; unbroken cloud.
3. 0 a.m.—Caledonia "going strong," and nearly 1,000 miles on her way.
Clipper making very good time, covering just over 400 miles in first three hours.

These officials arrived this morning with Mr. J. W. Dulanty, Free State High Commissioner in London. Irish officials at the lunch included Mr. Sean Leydon, Secretary, Department of Industry and Commerce; Mr. Sean Murphy, Assistant Secretary, Department of External Affairs; Mr. Sean O h-Uadhaigh and Mr. T. J. Flynn, directors of Aer-Rianta, Teoranta (the Irish company which will be co-operating in the Atlantic services); Mr. T. J. O'Driscoll, Civil Aviation Section, Department of Industry and Commerce; Major-General Michael Brennan, Chief of Staff; Commandant G. J. Carroll, Army Air Corps, and Alderman Daniel Bourke, the Mayor of Limerick.

BRIEF SPEECHES

The speech-making was brief. Mr. Sean Lemass rose and conveyed to Captain Wilcockson and his crew the best wishes of the Government on their flight, and bade them God-speed.

Captain Wilcockson made a reply as brief. He thanked everyone for their good wishes, and added that, if the flight was a success, it would be due to the efforts of all the people at Foynes as well as to his crew.

Looking at him grinning and waving his cigar one felt that there was little doubt that the cheery little man and his companions would put up a "really good show."

While this lighter side of preparing for the flight was going on there was more serious work in progress out on the Shannon. Over 2,300 gallons of petrol were pumped on board for the Caledonia's four engines, together with seventeen gallons of oil. With this fuel on board the Caledonia has a range in still air of 3,300 miles. Even flying against a continuous headwind of 40 miles per hour she should still have about two hours' fuel supply on board when landing at Port Botwood. In order to get the best out of his engines Captain Wilcockson will fly at 150 miles per hour, although the Caledonia's top-speed is 200 miles per hour, and her ordinary cruising speed 155 miles per hour.

THE EASTWARD FLIGHT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BOTWOOD (N.F.), Monday.

The Pan-American Clipper took off from here for Ireland at 10.10 p.m. (B.S.T.).

The Clipper has a crew of seven, the same number as on her preliminary flight last week. The Governor of Newfoundland, Sir Humphrey Walwyn, inspected her this afternoon, and then, boarding the 'plane, wished the occupants every success.

The Pan-American Airways flying-boat arrived here on Saturday night from Port Washing, Long Island. With a cruising speed of 163 m.p.h. and moderate weather, she expects to make the 1,993 miles' crossing in about twelve hours, arriving at Foynes Harbour, Irish Free State, by 10.30 a.m. to-morrow.

The weather was bright and warm, and it was still daylight when the giant 'plane disappeared in the East. She was refuelled this morning with 2,300 gallons of petrol, and thoroughly overhauled for the flight shortly before she took off.

Fishermen along the coast, lumbermen who are clearing the ground for Newfoundland's airport, and ground engineers here are following the progress of her flight with the keenest interest. All going well, she should stay in Ireland one day before flying on to Southampton to prepare for the return journey.

Meanwhile this isolated spot, 150 miles north-west of St. John's, is eagerly awaiting the arrival of the Imperial Airways flying-boat Caledonia, which left Foynes Harbour to-day at 7.57 p.m. (B.S.T.), and is expected here at about 11 a.m. (B.S.T.) to-morrow.

The flights of the Pan-American Clipper and of Caledonia to-day are the forerunners of a regular two-way commercial service across the North Atlantic.

THE SHOOTING OF MISS BOLAND

QUESTIONS IN COMMONS

In the House of Commons yesterday Sir William Davison (C.) asked the Foreign Secretary what action had been taken by the British Government, and with what result, as to the shooting by Spanish Government forces at Bilbao on June 16 of a British subject, Miss Bridget Boland, an Irish lady, who was a governess to a Spanish family in Bilbao.

Mr. Eden—I understand that the Irish Free State Government are making inquiries into this matter.

Sir William Davison—Does not the Government recognise their responsibility for the safety of British subjects wherever they are?

Mr. Eden—Yes, sir; certainly. But I understand that the Irish Free State are represented in Spain, and, therefore, they are dealing with this matter.

Mr. MacQuisten (C.)—What power has the Irish Free State Government? There is no power behind them at all.

SURVIVORS OF THE FIRST DAIL

ONLY NINE IN THE NEW HOUSE

MR. COSGRAVE'S FIRST MINISTERS

THE Dail, which is due to meet at Leinster House on 21st inst., is the ninth in succession to the first Dail which met in the Mansion House, Dublin, on January 21, 1919. On that occasion the seventy-two Sinn Fein members who had been elected at the 1918 general election came together in public session. Many of those elected were for constituencies in what is now Northern Ireland.

THE REMAINING NINE

Only nine of those present on that occasion are still members of the Free State Dail. They are:—

Eamonn de Valera—Co. Clare (East).
John T. O'Kelly—Dublin (College Green).
Frank Fahy—Co. Galway (South).
Finian Lynch—Co. Kerry (South).
William Cosgrave—Co. Kilkenny (North).
Dr. S. Ryan—Wexford (South).
John MacEntee—Co. Monaghan (South).
Tomas Kelly—Dublin (St. Stephen's Green).
James Bourke—Co. Tipperary (Mid.).

Three other members who continued in membership down to the recent dissolution, but have not been re-elected at the present election, are Desmond Fitzgerald, Richard Mulcahy and James Dolan. Mr. Donal Buckley, late Governor-General, was also a member of the First Dail. According to the list published in Flynn's "Parliamentary Companion," Mr. de Valera was apparently elected for the constituency of County Mayo (East) as well as for Clare.

THE THIRD DAIL

The Third Dail, which was the first after the Free State had been set up, met at Leinster House on 9th September, 1922, when Mr. W. T. Cosgrave, Acting Chairman of the Provisional Government, was elected President of the Executive Council. His Ministers were as follow:—

Minister for Home Affairs: Kevin O'Higgins.
Minister for Industry and Commerce: Joseph McGrath.
Minister for Agriculture: Patrick Hogan.
Minister for Education: Eoin MacNeill.
Minister for Local Government: Ernest Blythe.
Minister for External Affairs: Desmond Fitzgerald.
Minister for Defence: General Mulcahy.
Postmaster-General: J. J. Walsh.
Ministers without Portfolio: Eamonn Duggan, Finian Lynch.

Of Mr. Cosgrave's first Ministers it will be noticed that only one remains in the new Dail—Mr. Finian Lynch.

Although Mr de Valera and his followers declined to attend the sittings of the Dail until August, 1927, they took part in the general elections, and in the election of June of that year returned 44 deputies. Cumann na nGaedheal had 46, Labour 22, Independents 14, Farmers 11, National League 8, Sinn Fein 5, and the Independent Republicans 2. Shortly after the coming into the House of the Fianna Fail Party in August, 1927, there was a motion of "no confidence," in which the Government was saved by the casting vote of the Speaker, Mr. Michael Hayes.

TWO ELECTIONS

In the following month of September another general election was held, when the strength of the parties was: Government 61, Fianna Fail 57, Independents 12, Labour 13, Independent Labour 1, Farmers 6, National League 2. The feature of this election was that both the main parties increased their number, but Labour fell by nine. In the next election Labour fell still further, and in the late Dail it was eight.

At the general election in February, 1932, the Fianna Fail Party secured 72 seats and took office. A year later, in January, 1933, another general election was held, when the party's strength was increased to 77.

EARLY MORNING FIRE IN DUBLIN

Five families living in a tenement house at 187 Richmond road, Dublin, hurriedly removed their belongings into the street early this morning when fire broke out between two and three o'clock. Miss Hungerford, an elderly woman, who lived in an upstairs room, returned home to find the room in a blaze.

The brigade, which arrived a short time after the alarm had been given, succeeded in extinguishing the blaze within half an hour.

No one was injured, but most of the furniture and clothes in the room where the fire occurred were destroyed.

GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP

IRISH PLAYER'S LOW SCORE

Played from short tees because of a westerly wind, the medal course at Carnoustie soon lost its reputation for difficulty yesterday in the first qualifying round of the Open Golf Championship.

Aubrey Boomer (St. Cloud), one of the early starters went round in a record score of 69, and later Horton Smith, the young American who stood down from his country's Ryder Cup team because of loss of form, equalled that score.

On the inner Burnside course Walter Hagen, American Ryder Cup captain, started the record scoring with a 71 on his first full round of the course, and later the Royal Dublin professional, P. J. Mahon, and E. E. Whitcombe, surpassed that with 70s.

The field of 240 will play another qualifying round to-day, changing courses, and the leading 140 on 36 holes will qualify for the championship proper, starting to-morrow.

SEARCH FOR A SOLUTION

BRITAIN AND SPANISH PROBLEM

GERMAN-ITALIAN PLAN OPPOSED

NEUTRAL INSPECTORS SUGGESTION

LONDON, Monday.

THE week-end has given time for quiet reflection over the Spanish problem, and, as the policy of non-intervention still is adhered to on all sides, the search for a solution is being actively pursued, Reuter learns.

The British Government, it is understood, still consider the Anglo-French proposals for filling the gap in the control scheme the best available, and are confident of world-wide support. Their opposition to the German-Italian plan of granting belligerent rights is unchanged.

A SUGGESTION

M. Corbin, the French Ambassador, who spent the week-end in Paris, is expected in London, and will shortly inform Mr. Eden of the latest views held by the French Government. One suggestion which may be examined is that of placing observers in Spanish ports with the right of inspecting cargoes imported in Spanish as well as in foreign ships. So far failure to obtain the consent of the two parties in Spain has prevented the conclusion of such an arrangement.

Meanwhile, the allegation made in German circles that by not recognising belligerent rights Britain and France are denying General Franco the advantage to which his naval superiority entitles him is refuted in London.

It is pointed out that the object of the control is to prevent the supply of arms to Spain. If General Franco were able to commandeer Spanish Government merchant ships and use them for importing his own supplies while Valencia remains with her hands tied along the French frontier, the scales would be too heavily weighed in favour of the insurgents.

BELLIGERENT RIGHTS

The British Government would undoubtedly be more inclined to take up the question of granting belligerent rights if volunteers were withdrawn and the war reduced to a struggle between Spaniards.

In this connection the Reuter report taken from the Diario de Burgos that General Franco would not object to the withdrawal of volunteers under certain conditions is looked on in London as a sign that possibly the insurgents would like to be less dependent on foreign support.

Attention also is drawn to the Portuguese broadcast, in which the German-Italian proposals were criticised as a move intended to prevent General Franco from turning towards Britain and France.

There are indications that Italian policy has been aimed recently at identifying the two Western democracies with the "Red" element in the Spanish Government. If this policy had any chance of universal acceptance, the result would be to discredit France and Britain and strengthen the Italian position in the Mediterranean as the champions of orderly government.

Nevertheless, Great Britain has been able to maintain close touch with General Franco through the Commercial Secretary of the Embassy at Hendaye, Mr. Pack, and the permission granted to British miners to return to the Orconora iron works, near Bilbao, shows that the British policy of non-intervention need not interfere with her commercial interests.

VON NEURATH

The British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson, visited the Foreign Office yesterday morning, and had a conversation with Baron von Neurath, the German Foreign Minister, says a Reuter Berlin telegram.

It may be assumed that the forthcoming full session of the Non-Intervention Committee, and the possibility of attaining some agreement thereat, formed the main subject of the conversation, as the British Ambassador visited Baron von Neurath on Thursday afternoon last week, on the eve of Friday's London meeting, to urge that Germany should make some constructive proposal to the Non-Intervention Sub-Committee.

CABINET CONSIDERS NON-INTERVENTION

STANDS BY NAVAL CONTROL

FROM PRESS ASSOCIATIIN LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, the Prime Minister, presided over a Cabinet meeting in his private room at the House of Commons last night, when, it is understood, Mr. Eden reported in detail on the non-intervention situation, following the discussions last Friday, when the Non-Intervention Committee met.

Britain will adhere to her attitude that naval control is an integral part of the non-intervention scheme.

The Cabinet may have considered also the alternative proposals put forward by Germany and Italy, but it has already been indicated that these are not regarded as operating impartially between the two parties in Spain, and this view is, no doubt, endorsed by the Cabinet.

These alternative proposals included the granting of belligerent rights and the abolition of naval control, though land control was to continue.

Final consideration was also probably

EVACUATION OF NON-COMBATANTS

BRITISH GOVERNMENT TO ACT WITH RED CROSS

The British Government are collaborating with the International Red Cross Society in a scheme to evacuate a number of non-combatants of non-military age from Madrid. The scheme is being arranged by Dr. Junod, of the International Red Cross Society.

It is hoped that arrangements may be made to evacuate from Madrid those non-combatants who have relatives or friends in countries abroad willing and able to support them.

The Red Cross Society already has received promises regarding about four thousand people, and in addition it is understood that there are about four or five thousand more people who have sheltered in the Foreign Embassies and Legations in Madrid, and whom it is hoped to help. Most of them are women and children.

Dr. Junod is at present engaged in trying to overcome transport difficulties from Madrid to Valencia. At Valencia the British hospital ship, Maine, would be used for evacuating non-combatants.

FRANCO BARS FOREIGNERS

SPANISH CIVILIANS ONLY

It was announced this evening that until further orders no civilians of non-Spanish nationality will be admitted to that portion of Spain under control of the insurgent Junta (says a Reuter St. Jean de Luz telegram).

This decision followed difficulties experienced recently by British business men with interests at Bilbao in entering Spain at Hendaye and Irun, in spite of the fact that their British and French visas were in order.

In view of the importance of British and French interests in the Province of Vizcaya it is surmised that this new measure may be one of the methods adopted by General Franco to bring about the recognition of at least belligerent rights by Great Britain and France.

H.M. battleship Resolution arrived at St. Jean de Luz from the Spanish coast yesterday. It is understood that she witnessed the arrest of the French merchantman, Tregastel, by the Almirante Cervera yesterday.

GERMAN WARSHIPS

REPORTED IN ITALIAN PORT

ROME, Monday.

An unconfirmed report from Sardinia states that a German cruiser and several destroyers have anchored in the port of Cagliari.

There is talk of the arrival of other German warships in Italian ports, including Tripoli.

The atmosphere here to-day is one of pessimistic expectation, although official quarters refuse to anticipate events in any way.

Great Britain continues to be the subject of Press attacks.

Signor Gayda, in the Giornale d'Italia, accused her of supporting the Valencia Government because the is anxious to maintain the supply of iron ore from Bilbao, without which the British rearmament programme would be severely handicapped.

"Agreement with Britain would be easy," he writes, "if it were true that her objectives were only, as Mr. Eden said in his past speech, the inviolability of Spain and the localisation of the Spanish conflict."

The insinuation that Britain organised the attempt to assassinate Dr. Salazar, Prime Minister of Portugal, is made by the Rome newspaper Tevere to-day.

It states: "Poltical circles in Lisbon give much credence to the theory that the attempt was a machination of the British Intelligence Service, motivated by the loyal attitude of Dr. Salazar's Government towards the Spanish situation.

Other headlines in the Tevere are: "Britain Threatens Portugal," "All Islam is Against England," "Paris and London Intrigue and Menace."—Reuter.

Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday, Mr. Eden said: "So far as I am aware, there are at present no German warships in the Mediterranean."

POSTMASTER WITH A SHOTGUN

EARLY MORNING BURGLARS DRIVEN OFF

A raid on a post office that was interrupted by the postmaster, armed with a shotgun, was described at Grays (Essex) Police Court yesterday, when George Robert Taylor, aged 25, of Darwin street, Old Kent road, London, S.E., was charged with being concerned with other men not in custody in breaking and entering the post office at Corringham, near Grays.

Police Superintendent Marriage said that at about four o'clock yesterday morning Mr. George Wood, the postmaster at Corringham, heard voices coming from the post office, which is opposite his house. He looked through the bedroom window and saw three or four men in the post office. Outside was a car.

Mr. Wood got a shotgun, pointed it at the men, and shouted across the road at them. They jumped into the car and drove off. The police were called and they blocked the road with a lorry.

When the car with the men in it came up to the barrier it swerved down a side road and across some fields. The police followed, and one man jumped out of the car. The man was Taylor, who was caught and taken into custody. Later the car was found abandoned, and a number of cameras, some stationery, electric batteries, and some cash taken from the shop were found in it.

The superintendent asked for a remand in custody until Friday, and this was granted.

VALENCIA AIR RAID

EFFICIENCY OF DEFENCES

FAMILY'S NARROW ESCAPE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VALENCIA, Monday.

FURTHER details have become known during the day of last night's air raid, the full brunt of which was undoubtedly intended for Valencia, but which failed rather miserably, thanks to the city's defences.

The Febus News Agency reports that the raid was carried out by six or seven three-engined 'planes, which on arriving at the outskirts of Valencia in a group divided and went off in three different directions—to the north, south and east. However, so strong was the anti-aircraft fire that machines were mainly forced to confine themselves to bombing small towns some miles from Valencia.

In one town twenty bombs fell, and one man who left his house to escape to the open country when he heard the first explosions was killed.

At Beni Carlos 25 bombs were dropped and twelve persons injured.

At yet another village eight projectiles caused one death and injury to three persons.

INCENDIARY BOMBS

Some of the bombs were of the incendiary type, but these, fortunately, fell in a field, doing no worse damage than singeing some orange trees.

It would seem that these bombs were hastily dropped in an effort to make a quick getaway.

One bomb at least fell in Valencia proper, not many minutes' walk from the centre of the city. It wrecked the top floor of a house, and, had the missle struck the night before, it would probably have killed seven people. These people had become so frightened at the prospect of air raids that last night they—father, mother and five small children—moved to the ground floor to sleep, thus, unquestionably, saving their lives.

It is learned on good authority that every one of the bombs dropped was of recent manufacture, and that several did not explode.

The Febus Agency to-night reports that one of the raiders was hit by the anti-aircraft battery.

By dumping all its bombs (27 in all) near one of the surrounding villages, however, the machine was able to get away. One of the bombs killed a man, gravely injured his wife, and less seriously injured his daughters.

To-night's air communiqué by the Ministry of National Defence states that Government 'planes to-day bombed the enemy concentrations which were observed along the road from La Granja to Segovia, and from Segovia to Revenga, on the Guadarrama front.

LIGHTNING 'BUS STRIKE

MEN RETURNING TO WORK

The lightning strike of nearly 200 busmen employed in the Exeter area by the Devon General Company was partly settled last night.

After conferring with an official of the National Union of Railwaymen, the men decided to return to work at once pending negotiations with the company at Torquay to-day.

The men were striking for fewer hours, claiming that the spread-over system is detrimental to their health. They are demanding that the spread-over shall not be more than two hours over the payable duty time and that if the spread-over comes to thirteen hours they shall be paid eleven hours. At present they are paid at the rate of eight hours' duty.

It is also claimed by the men that the dispute has been going on for three years. Yesterday's strike coincided with the beginning of the summer time service.

The Devon General Company covers the major portion of the county, including the borough of Torquay, but not Exeter and Plymouth.

Someone told him that a woman was in difficulties in the River Chelmer. He rushed to the spot and, pausing only to remove his helmet, dived into 18 feet of water to rescue the woman after a struggle.

The woman, Mrs Alice Margaret Gayler (30), of Wymondham, Norfolk, recovered after artificial respiration. She is now in hospital.

FATAL ARMAGH COLLISION

BOY KILLED: PRIEST AND OTHER MAN INJURED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

ARMAGH, Monday.

At Middletown this evening Mr. J. Anderson, Coroner, and a jury held an inquest on William McAree (17), labourer, Coolkill, who was killed yesterday in a collision between a motor cycle ridden by him and a motor car driven by the Very Rev. P. J. Toner, D.D., P.P., Middletown.

Gerald Kane said that Charles Edmunds, of Corfeignan, called at the deceased boy's house on Sunday morning with a motor cycle and asked witness to go for a spin. Witness declined, and Edmunds then asked for the deceased boy, and the latter accompanied him, and drove the machine with Edmunds on the pillion. Subsequently they passed witness on the road from Middletown just before the collision. They were travelling at a fast rate. After they passed witness he heard the sound of a motor horn, and almost immediately a terrific crash. He then found the motor cycle had collided with Dr. Toner's car. McAree was lying by the grass verge to the left of the car and Edmunds on the road to the right of the car. McAree was dead and Edmunds unconscious. The motor cycle was badly broken up, and the radiator screen and steering wheel of the car were smashed. Dr. Toner was cut on the head, face and hands.

The police gave evidence as to measurements, from which it appeared that at the moment of the impact Dr. Toner's car was only eight inches from the grass verge on his proper side of the road, and would have left the cyclists over eight feet of clear space in which to pass on their side of the road.

Dr. Condy said that death was due to fracture of the skull.

Dr. Toner stated that before the collision took place he was going at about 25 miles an hour and as close to his own side of the road as he could keep. Rounding the bend he saw the motor cycle approaching about 15 or 20 yards away on the wrong side of the road and travelling at a very fast rate. He applied his brakes, but saw that a collision was inevitable. The cycle struck the car.

The jury found the cause of death in accordance with the medical testimony, and added a rider exonerating Dr. Toner from blame.

At the County Infirmary to-night it was stated that Edmunds is in a most critical condition.

LINER GREETS FLYING BOAT

A cat, a greyhound, and a box of old china presents to friends in America, were put on board the Cunard White Star liner Scythia when she entered Galway Harbour yesterday morning on her voyage from Liverpool to Boston and New York. Fifty passengers embarked at Galway, and sixteen sacks of mails were put on board.

When the Scythia was coming up the West Coast of Ireland towards Galway at 5 p.m. the Transatlantic flying boat Caledonia passed over her. The pilot of the Caledonia spoke to Captain Edkin, and asked him whether he was bound for New York, and what speed he was making. Captain Edkin replied by wireless that the Scythia was bound for Galway in the first instance, and was subsequently proceeding to Boston and New York. He also gave information regarding the speed of the liner, and wished the pilot of the Caledonia a good passage to New York.

FATAL SEQUEL TO CORK ACCIDENT

Daniel McCarthy, of Drawbridge street, Cork, who was seriously injured on Sunday in a fall from a wall overlooking the strand at Crosshaven, died last night.

Police of six counties—Sussex, Hants, Gloucester, Wilts, Berks, and Monmouthshire—were on Saturday searching for a phial of deadly poison. The phial, which contained 20 tablets of morphine sulphate, was lost by a doctor who was motoring from Ebbw Vale, Wales. How the tablets were lost is a mystery, but alarm is felt as the smallest dose could easily prove fatal.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

BUILDING COSTS

The Times in a leading article to-day says:—Recent questions in the House of Commons have almost daily called attention to the present rise in building costs, and have shown anxiety about the possible effect upon the great social service of assisted house-building. This anxiety is well founded, because the building industry is, in the economic sense, a veritable key industry.

It is interesting to observe, proceeds The Times, what a difference is caused by the cessation of a glut in supplies. In Scotland, where the pressure upon the industry is even more severe, the rise in the cost of a house between June, 1936, and June, 1937, has been, roughly, £100, no less than £60 of which is due, according to Mr. Elliot, to the fact that contractors are quoting higher and higher because they do not want the business. The question arises whether this increase is due to profiteering, but no unqualified answer can be given. The principal materials used in building are bricks, timber, steel, copper, lead and zinc. The base metals enter very little into the cost of a house, and in any case their prices are quite outside British control. Steel is an important element only in industrial construction or in larger tenement buildings, and though complaints of a lack of supplies for steel users are justifiably increasing, and have just resulted in a substantial reduction in the import duties on certain classes of steel, the cost of steel in the kind of house now being considered is negligible.

The cost of timber is important, and the rise in this material accounts for over 60 per cent. of the increase in the cost of all materials, but here again the price is outside British control, and the producers abroad and in the Dominions have passed through such hard times that they are not to be blamed for taking a modest share in the revived prosperity of primary producers. The price of bricks, which are mainly a home-produced article, has risen very little. It seems clear, therefore, that efforts to keep down prices should be concentrated upon reducing the greatly increased margin for contingencies now demanded by contractors, and it will be noted that this margin represents much more than half the total increase in the cost of a house.

LOWERING TRADE BARRIERS

M. VAN ZEELAND'S TALK WITH PREMIER

FROM THE PRESS ASSOCIATION LOBBY CORRESPONDENT.

M. van Zeeland, Prime Minister of Belgium, visited Mr. Neville Chamberlain at the House of Commons last night. They were in consultation together in the Prime Minister's private room from 6 o'clock until 7.15.

The Belgian Ambassador in London accompanied M. van Zeeland.

To-day the Belgian Premier will probably have a final talk with Mr. Eden.

M. van Zeeland last night told Mr. Chamberlain about his visit to Washington and European capitals. He spoke of international trade barriers, and possible ways of reducing them and of other international economic problems.

The Belgian Premier, it is gathered, has formulated certain proposals and ideas after his consultations with President Roosevelt and European statesmen, and he described these at length to Mr. Chamberlain.

President Roosevelt probably figured prominently in the talk, as the President is a strong believer in the lowering of international trade barriers as a means of ensuring world peace.

The following official statement was issued from the Foreign Office:—

"The Prime Minister of Belgium, Monsieur van Zeeland, accompanied by the Belgian Ambassador, had an interview with the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary at the House of Commons last afternoon.

"In the course of the conversation Monsieur van Zeeland's impressions of his recent visit to the United States of America were discussed, and agreement was come to as to further steps which might usefully be taken in pursuit of the objects of Monsieur van Zeeland's investigations."

FAST BRITISH TRAINS

THE CORONATION SCOT'S DASH

The fastest public rail service ever operated between London and Glasgow was introduced by the London Midland and Scottish Railway yesterday, when the Coronation Scot expresses made their inaugural journeys.

Hauled by streamlined locomotives of the "Coronation" type, one of which last week established a new British maximum rail speed record of 114 miles per hour, the Coronation Scot blue and silver expresses are scheduled to cover the 401¼ miles in each direction in 6½ hours at an overall average speed—inclusive of a stop at Carlisle—of 61.7 miles per hour.

Crowds at Euston last night saw the arrival of the southbound train from Glasgow one minute early at 7.59 p.m., having averaged approximately 64 miles per hour over the 299 miles from Carlisle.

A maximum speed of 95 miles per hour was attained between Whitmore and Crewe by the northbound train, which arrived at Glasgow at 7.54 p.m.—six minutes before time—having covered the 102¼ miles from Carlisle to Glasgow in 100 minutes.

The overall average speed of the northbound train was 62.5 miles per hour, including a stop at Carlisle.

A DAY OF DRAMA

SEARCH FOR MISS EARHART

WARSHIPS TO THE RESCUE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

HONOLULU, Monday.

MISS AMELIA EARHART and her navigator, Captain Noonan, who came down in the Pacific on their round-the-world flight, are believed to be still alive, though whether they are on land or floating in their 'plane in the sea is not clear, owing to conflicting reports said to have been received from her throughout the day.

News that they were on land came after Pan-American station at Hawaii had sent out instructions to Miss Earhart to send "three long dashes" if she was on land.

According to her husband, "three dashes" were heard almost immediately after instructions had been sent to Honolulu.

THREE DASHES

The coastguard cutter engaged in rescue work also heard the dashes.

According to a Los Angeles (California) message, three long dashes were also received at 2 p.m. (B.S.T.) on Miss Earhart's wavelength.

Mr. Paul Mantz, her technical adviser, described this as "the most hopeful sign yet received."

The dramatic news that the 'plane was sinking was received by U.S. Navy officials at Honolulu between 1.30 p.m. and 2.30 p.m. (B.S.T.) in the form of a garbled message picked up by three Navy operators. When pieced together it read: "281 North Howland (call KHAQQ)—Miss Earhart's call letters—beyond North. Don't hold with us much longer; above water; shut off."

The operators reported that the keying of the message was poor, and that they were able to pick up fragments only.

U.S. Navy officials interpret the message to mean that the 'plane is about 281 miles north of Howland Island by Miss Earhart's estimate, and is sinking slowly, forcing her to stop sending messages.

Hard on the heels of this news the British steamer Moorby (bound for Sydney), who gave her position as 240 miles north of Howland Island, reported that she heard a "strong, continuous carrier wave frequency" near 10 a.m. (B.S.T.), and for the last time at 1.30 p.m. to-day.

HOWLAND ISLAND

At the same time Coastguard men declared that they last heard the carrier at Honolulu at 1 p.m. The Constguard cutter, Itasca, stationed at Howland Island—"the speck in the Pacific," for which the flyers were making on their round-the-world flight—and whose radio was silent until messages, presumably from Miss Earhart, were intercepted by Baker Island, has begun transmitting signals in the hope that they will be received by the missing 'plane.

The day's drama is told in the following messages:—

8.5 a.m. (B.S.T.), Honolulu—Reports that definite radio signals on Miss Earhart's frequency are stated by Pan-American Airways to have been received in answer to instructions broadcast to the missing fliers.

11.15 a.m.—Itasca hears the call letters "KHAQQ."

10 a.m.—1.10 p.m.—British steamer, Moorby, hears a "strong, continuos carrier wave frequency."

1.30-2.30 p.m.—Honolulu picks up "sinking" message.

1 p.m.—Coastguard hear signs for last time.

2 p.m.—"Three long dashes" picked up—"most hopeful sign yet received."

RESCUE EXPEDITION

Meanwhile the greatest rescue expedition in the history of flying has been mobilised to comb the Pacific for "Lady Lindy" and her companion. It consists of 3,000 men, 57 fighting 'planes, a battleship, four destroyers and an aircraft carrier.

The United States Government has ordered them to get to Howland Island as soon as they can. Three of the 'planes are on board the battleship Colorado (32,500 tons), which left Honolulu on Saturday afternoon, and is due at Howland Island to-morrow. Behind her is speeding the aircraft carrier, Lexington (33,000 tons), with 54 more 'planes from the San Diego naval base. She is accompanied by the destroyers, Cushing, Perkins, Lampson and Brayton, on the 4,400 miles dash to Howland Island.

The coastguard cutter Itasca, stationed at the island, has searched 3,000 square miles of ocean, concentrating her search in the vicinity of a spot about 120 miles west of Howland Island. According to amateur wireless operators, this was the position Miss Earhart gave in S.O.S signals yesterday.

JAPAN TO HELP

A Reuter Tokio telegram says:—Mr. Hirota, the Japanese Foreign Minister, to-day informed the United States Government through Mr. Saito, Japanese Ambassador in Washington, that Japanese fishing vessels in the South Seas would "gladly" join in the search for Miss Earhart.

If necessary, Mr. Hirota stated the Japanese Navy would also lend its services.

BRITISH WARSHIP

On the assumption that Miss Earhart may have been forced to land on some remote British island to the south, the San Francisco coastguard station has suggested to Washington that the British warship, Achilles, be invited to take part in the search.

It is proposed that the State Department should obtain British co-operation in searching the uninhabited islands of the Phœnix group to the south-east of Howland Island. The Achilles, it is added, was recently in the neighbourhood of these islands.

AGRICULTURE IN BRITAIN

PREPARING FOR TIME OF WAR

COMMONS DISCUSSES GOVERNMENT BILL

FROM OUR PARLIAMENTARY CORRESPONDENT.

WESTMINSTER, Monday.

MR. RAMSBOTHAM, Minister of Pensions (a former Under Secretary for Agriculture), moved the second reading of the Agriculture Bill, the details of which had already been discussed on the financial resolution. If, he said, the Opposition intended to oppose this bill they would find some difficulty in explaining their action to their constituents, who were in favour of at least three-quarters of the measure.

Referring to the great reduction which had taken place in the production of cereals, he asked if they considered it wise to leave the country so dependent upon imports of such important materials in the event of a national emergency. It was said that they had the command of the sea. That was true, but it should not be forgotten that they had command of the sea during the last war and yet Mr. Lloyd George told them that at one time they were face to face with starvation.

DRINKING LESS BEER

The proposals of the bill treated agriculture as a whole and did not break up the subject into unrelated processes. Their effect would be to stir up fertility of the soil and to keep the plough going.

In regard to oats and barley, it must be remembered that before the war the greater consumption was attributable to the large number of horses that were in existence and to the greater consumption of beer. Any artificial encouragement would result in uneconomic production and unstability.

"This bill, as Mr. Morrison has stated," he said, "is not designed to put agriculture on a war-time basis. It is a peace-time measure, designed to enable expansion to take place in an emergency should it arise." (Cheers.)

NOTHING ABOUT WAGES

Mr. Paling (Labour) said that agriculture had had more than a fair share of attention since 1931. A great many bills dealing with agriculture in one form or another had been presented, and yet they were told that agriculture was not, so far, on the road to prosperity. With six years intensive effort on the part of a Government with a huge majority one would have thought farmers were doing very well, indeed. There had been tariffs, restrictions, quotas, and marketing schemes, and now they had this bill. Still the cry went up that enough had not been done.

One striking feature of the bill was that there was nothing in it about wages. The agricultural worker apparently was not to be considered. In eleven years the farm labourer's wages had been increased by one shilling a week. It was the landlords and the farmers who got and kept the money so generously given by the State. The agricultural worker was not being given a square deal.

CLEAN WATER FOR CATTLE

Was the Ministry doing anything to ensure that cattle obtained a clean water supply, he asked. Much was being done to cure disease, but, surely, it was more important to prevent it in this way.

The Government was catering for those who took more out of the land than they put into it. The only people who put more into the land than they got out of it were the workers, and it was time that the Government, having brought in so many bills giving subsidies to their friends, should now bring in a bill that would do something for the agricultural labourer.

Mr. Richard Acland (Liberal) accused the Government and its supporters of making "doles-scrounging and vote-scrounging" speeches on this subject.

TREK TO THE TOWNS

Mr. Quibell (Lab., Brigg) said that if in the bill there had been provision for an automatic increase in wages to bring them up to £2 in the five years there would have been more satisfaction. Many good farmers would like to see their labourers in receipt of wages as good as labourers who worked in industrial areas. Stabilisation of an economic price would reflect itself in better wages and prevent the flow of labour from the already depopulated countryside to the towns.

Lord Willoughby de Eresby (Cons.) welcomed the proposals, and said that their necessary complements were well-stocked and well-manured fields and a more regular use of the hoe. Motoring about the country one was struck by the fact that the fields were not carrying their full head of stock, and by the large number of docks, thistles and other rubbish. He advocated as a component part of the long-term policy the provision of easier long-term credit.

FACTORIES ON FARMS

Mr Tom Williams (Lab.) complained that the Ministry had no control over the land of the country. Factories had been set up on some of the best agricultural land. He was not satisfied with the argument that the growing of cereals provided more employment. Labourers were leaving the land because they were not getting the wages they should be paid.

Mr. Morrison, Minister of Agriculture, in winding up the debate, asked the House to keep in mind the defence aspect. That aspect remained. They all hoped that they should not be asked to be subject to pressure on our food supplies as we were in the last war, when it was characteristic of the effort made, and it would be certainly characteristic of any Government in the next war that they would try to increase the production of food for consumption, not so much as to try and make the country self-contained in its food resources, but in order to diminish the strain upon shipping and on His Majesty's ships as convoys.

The bill was read a second time without a division.

THE LADIES OF LLANGOLLEN

MEMORIAL TO THE TWO IRISH EXILES

A memorial to Lady Eleanor Charlotte Butler and Miss Sarah Ponsonby, the historic "Ladies of Llangollen," was unveiled on Sunday at Llangollen Parish Church by Lord Howard de Walden and dedicated by Archdeacon Williams. The memorial is a plaque in marble executed by the London sculptor, Violet Labouchere, and presented by Dr. Mary Gordon, of Sussex.

"The ladies" fled from Ireland, forsaking the delights of society to live a quiet life in the stately grounds of Plas Newydd, Llangollen, where they received many distinguished visitors, including Sir Walter Scott and Wordsworth. Lady Butler died in 1829 and Miss Ponsonby two years later. They were buried in Llangollen churchyard.

The memorial, which stands on the south wall, consists of half-length figures of "the ladies" in high relief.

Unveiling the plaque, Lord Howard de Walden said much had been written and spoken concerning the lives of these two ladies, and he could add a short comment on their memories. "It seems strange," he said, "that these memories should yet be green, and we may wonder why so many others as worthy (for such there must have been) are gone into oblivion." "The ladies," he said, lived in a revolution, and chose from it a way of life which had satisfied them and hurt none. To this they adhered throughout their long lives, for which they were admired and respected by the best minds of their period.

They could not be imitated, nor would their like happen again, but they could be admired and respected for their success. There were few successes now that one could admire and fewer still that could be respected. The success of the "Ladies of Llangollen" was their constancy.

EDINBURGH'S WELCOME FOR KING AND QUEEN

WEEK'S CEREMONIAL BEGUN

Edinburgh's welcome to the King and Queen when they arrived there yesterday for a week's State Coronation visit was tumultous, for Scotland holds the Queen very near its heart. The Queen pleased the vast crowds, particularly when she refused to allow pouring rain to prevent her inspecting the 2nd Battalion of the Black Watch, of which she is Colonel-in-Chief.

The rain held off for the drive through the city, but the bad weather did not damp the crowd's enthusiasm. An incident which soon won all hearts occurred as the Queen walked with the King from Holyrood Palace to take the salute at a march past.

Eighty-four years old ex-Sergeant George Alexander—a veteran of the "wet review," a parade which Queen Victoria held in 1881, when everyone was drenched in rain—shouted to her: "Ah, you're a bonny lassie."

The Queen went and spoke to him, and then the old man was heard to say in aloud voice, "I'd like to have courted you myself." The Queen joined in the crowd's laughter.

While the Queen was inspecting the Black Watch, the King, accompanied by the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, went for a walk along the side of Salisbury Crag in the rain. Few people recognised him, and when he reached the top of Arthur's Seat, the hill which dominates Edinburgh, he stood for some time admiring the magnificent vista.

Before a dinner party at Holyrood last night the King knighted the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, Mr. Louis Gumley, who was among those who received the Royal Party when they reached Prince's Street Station in the morning.

Something of the picturesque ceremonial which will mark the visit of the King and Queen to Scotland was seen soon after they arrived when the King reviewed the Royal Company of Archers, His Majesty's Bodyguard of Scotland, in the gardens of Holyrood.

Twenty archers, who number among them nobles of Scotland, presented the reddendo, a gift of three barbed arrows on a cushion, which the archers give to their Sovereign according to their ancient charter.

CLARE PHOSPHATES

NEED FOR FURTHER RESEARCH

In 1933, says the Journal of the Department of Agriculture, a series of pasture manurial experiments was laid down mainly on peaty soils, with the object of comparing Clare phosphate from a new seam with North African mineral phosphate as a source of phosphates for top-dressing pastures. The Clare phosphate was applied at the rate of 10 cwt. per statute acre, and the North African mineral phosphate at the rate of 8 cwt. per statute acre, at 138 centres.

The plots were kept under observation during 1933 and 1934, and the results noted were published in the Department's Journal, Volume XXXIII., Nos. 1 and 2.

During the season 1935, these plots were again kept under observation, and reports on the appearance of the plots during the year and up to the close of the grazing period, were received from 112 centres (the plots at the remaining 26 centres having been ploughed up). At 98 of these centres the North African mineral phosphate produced a considerable improvement in the quality and quantity of the herbage. In practically every case the increase of clovers and finer grasses was a striking feature. At ten other centres the improvement was described as fair, and at three of the four remaining centres a slight improvement was noticeable, whilst at one centre no change in the appearance of the plot was noticeable.

Of the plots dressed with Clare phosphate, a considerable improvement in the quality and quantity of the herbage—quite equal to that produced by the North African mineral phosphate—was reported from thirteen centres. At 21 other centres a fair improvement in the general appearance of the pasture was noted. At 31 additional centres only a slight improvement in the appearance of the pasture, as compared with the control plots, was reported. There was no evidence of improvement in the plots dressed with Clare phosphate as compared with the controls at the remaining 47 centres.

A MUNICIPAL CEMETERY

"If the poor want to bury their dead decently they have to go into debt for four or five years. That should not be allowed to continue," said Mrs. Clarke, proposing a resolution at last night's meeting of the Dublin Corporation that a municipal cemetery be provided. The poor, said Mrs. Clarke, were in a very cruel position in regard to the burying of their dead. It was up to the Corporation to do something either by taking over Glasnevin Cemetery or providing a municipal cemetery.

Mr. Martin O'Sullivan said that the Glasnevin Cemetery authorities ought to do something to meet the wishes of the public in the matter. It was a notorious fact that the charges in Glasnevin Cemetery were outrageous.

The resolution was referred to the General Purposes Committee.

TRAFFIC AND "SAFETY FIRST"

TESTS FOR ALL DRIVERS

Assistant Commissioner J. Brennan received members of the Traffic and Safety First Association of Ireland at Kilmainham yesterday.

The questions under discussion pending the general bye-laws for the control of traffic, 1937, were the regulations in reference to the issuing of driving licences.

It was the opinion of the Traffic and Safety First Association that certain tests should be enforced prior to issuing of driving licence to anybody, and also that the Garda should be the authority to examine applicants for driving licences.

Assistant Commissioner Brennan stated that in his opinion no drivers should be allowed out untested.

SAFETY OF CHILDREN

Another matter dealt with was the educating of school children in safety first principles, and the Garda have for some time carried out useful work in this field. Regulations for the control of children immediately after they have been released from school were discussed.

The deputation were informed that the new general bye-laws for the control of traffic covered cyclists. Important provisions set down that no more than two cyclists could ride abreast, and then there could not be more than ten groups following one another.

The deputation were also informed that the traffic signal for Dublin would be erected very shortly at the junction of Merrion square and Clare street.

NEW BRIDGES

Mr. David Coyle, Chairman, Traffic and Safety First Association of Ireland, dealt with the grave problem of congestion of traffic. Through bad planning it was now becoming very acute and the provision of two new bridges was a great necessity.

Superintendent John Fleming was present. The deputation consisted of:—David Coyle, P.C. (chairman), Colonel O'Callaghan Westropp, W. A. Podesta P.C.; Fergus A. Ryan, M.R.I.A.I.; P. J. Hogan, B.Comm., Secretary, Traffic and Safety First Association of Ireland.

WANTED TO KILL WIFE FIRST

BUTLER WHO SHOT HIMSELF

A woman who saw her husband shoot himself, after he had talked of killing her first, told a Coroner yesterday of the ordeal through which she had passed.

At the Windsor inquest on Robert Allison (40), butler to Sir George Mitcheson, M.P. for West St. Pancras, London, who shot himself on Burnham Beeches golf course, a verdict was returned that Allison died from gunshot wounds, and that he killed himself while the balance of his mind was disturbed.

Mrs. Maureen Allison said that her husband on Friday gave her £5 6s.—his Army pension, which he had just drawn. He was very upset, and began to cry. He said he was going to take his life, as he was fed up. He went upstairs and fetched a pistol; loaded it in front of her, and said that he was sorry he was doing it but that it had to be done. He suggested that he should shoot her first and then shoot himself, but she protested and did her best to try to persuade him not to do it. Through a gap in the hedge he went on to the golf course, and there in her sight shot himself. She did not know why he had been depressed of late, but he had had a little trouble with Sir George.

Sir George Mitcheson said that a few weeks ago he had occasion to speak to Allison because there was a matter of £3 10s. in the accounts which he could not account for. Allison said that he lost the money walking across the golf course, but witness did not believe that story.

That morning he received a letter from a firm of wine merchants, enclosing a bill for £45 13s. for spirits delivered during the past few months. It looked as if Allison had drunk this large amount, which he had not paid for, but had put down to witness's account.

Twenty-six years ago John Thomas Hall, a 17-year-old miner, was buried under a fall of roof at Triydail Colliery, Carmarthenshire. His stomach was forced towards his chest and his heart was pushed to the right side of his body. For years he was able to do light work and then, at the age of 43, he died. At the Swansea inquest, where this story was told, death was attributed to slow strangulation of the vessels of the stomach.

Narrow Victory for Golden Beam in the Savile Plate

NOTTINGHAM, Monday Night.

BACKERS of favourites fared badly at the first stage of the Nottingham meeting, and, although some of the winners were well supported, not one first market choice proved equal to the occasion. R. J. Colling, the Newmarket trainer, saddled two winners in Wedding Ring II. and Dolamite, and P. Evans, the jockey, also registered a "double."

Gothic, who followed up a victory at Gatwick in May by running second to Rhodes Scholar at Ascot, was all the rage for the Harrington Plate, but he ran much below expectations, and the best he could do was to fill third place to Royal Avenue and Honey Bird.

A Great Struggle

Kenneth, the early pacemaker, was beaten as the runners approached the straight, at which stage Beary endeavoured to send Gothic into the lead; but Lord Abergavenny's colt could not respond to his rider's calls, and the issue lay between Royal Avenue and Honey Bird. It was a great struggle between the pair, and it was only by half a length that the Cheshire-trained colt got the verdict, with the favourite a head further away. By the Way made up considerable leeway in the straight to finish a good fourth.

Golden Beam won the Savile Plate after a thrilling finish with Antecedent. Flying Scotsman II., a clear favourite, was always in a handy position, but the son of Artist's Proof could never match the speed of the placed horses. Golden Beam was with the leaders throughout, and Crouch rode him with good judgment to get the better of Antecedent by a head. Exorbitant colt was only a length further behind, and about half a length in front of the favourite. After Flying Scotsman II. had passed the post a leather broke, and Carslake was thrown heavily. The jockey, although badly shaken and bruised, was able to walk back.

Running Deer was given as a runner, but his number was withdrawn. His trainer, S. Martin, had Running Deer and Haut Ecole entered, and while the intention was to run the latter Running Deer was inadvertently declared for. Both horses were on the spot.

Won as He Pleased

Hurry de Savoie, who won easily a week ago at Wolverhampton, was a comfortable winner of the Elvaston Plate, the favourite, J'Accours, having to be content with second place. No excuse could be advanced for the failure of the latter as he was always well placed, but he could never go the pace of the winner, who drew out to win by as far as his jockey wished.

Dolamite enabled Jack Colling to complete his "double" by gaining an easy victory in the Bramcote Plate at the main expense of St. Botolph. The pair had the issue between them, as Bedale Girl was well beaten for second place. King's Highway, the favourite, was never in the race with a chance.

Backers had a shock when Seven Dials won the Holme Pierrepont Selling Plate, as the filly was not given a quotation in the wagering. She had three lengths to spare over Santa Lucia at the judge's box. Start Now, who carried a 7lb. penalty incurred at Wolverhampton, was joint favourite, but he never raised the hopes of his backers and could get no nearer than fifth.

Valkyrie Fails

Wedding Ring II., second favourite for the Arnold Selling Plate, left her field standing. P. Beasley took her to the front at half-way, and a furlong from home he was able to look round, ease up his mount and yet have five lengths to spare. Valkyrie, the first choice of backers, was fractious at the barrier and took some coaxing to get into his place. Although he got off all right he could never go the pace set by Wedding Ring II.

GIFTLAW SHOULD SCORE

Fairford and Pavanna Likely Winners at Nottingham

FRED DARLING has supplied a big proportion of winners on the Salisbury track in recent years, and it looks as though he will make an early start to-day by taking the Norman Court Stakes with Giftlaw. Although the colt has failed to reach a place in his two races this season, he should be capable of giving weight to the not too strong opposition. He has been well galloped since he found the six furlongs too short for him here in May, and I take it as a significant pointer that he runs in preference to the useful Morland, who has won his last two races. Chief danger may be Lord Harewood's Impregnable, who is set to receive 21lb. She ran much better at Birmingham last month than her placing suggests, but I doubt if she will be capable of beating

GIFTLAW.

A better race from a betting point of view is the Wilton Handicap, in which Swift Arrow, who won the race last year carrying 8st. 13lb., will now attempt the double under top weight of 9st. 7lb. He is well, and should make a bold bid, but I have more liking for on this occasion. After a long lapse Mr. Chris Jarvis's gelding showed a return to something like his old form when running fourth to Pherozshah at Ascot. While giving him a confident vote, I have a good word for Satyr, who ran well for a long way in his last race at Newmarket, and this easier track should be all in his favour.

Viking, The Bittern, Polydale filly and Troon all appear to hold fair chances in the Salisbury Maiden Plate. Preference is given to who, I am told, has progressed considerably since he was unluckily beaten by Dusky at Chester.

The two welter plates will bring out a number of our best amateur jockeys. Prince Aly Khan has got well acquainted with his French importation since the three years old arrived in England, and I expect him to be returned a short-priced winner of the Dunbridge Plate. The Amateurs' Plate may go to Mr. P. Herbert on though such as Our Hope and Fillip are sure to give him plenty to do.

HUXLEY

FAIRFORD

has been a costly failure this season, but I shall not oppose Cottrill's colt in the Dukeries Foal Plate at Nottingham. He is of much better class than his rivals, and over a mile, which is his best distance, he should recover some of the losses. If he is beaten by anything it may be Cartimandua, who has been seen to advantage in recent gallops.

PAVANNA

has only to reproduce her form in the Britannia Stakes at Ascot, where she was third to Azam Pasha, to win the Bolsover Handicap.

RACING AT KILLARNEY

Single Ben Wins Hurdle Race After Great Finish

THE opening day of the Killarney meeting attracted a fairly large crowd to the picturesque course, on the Lakeside. Doubtless, there would have been many more people but for the fact that there were drenching rainfalls during the morning hours. Luckily these cleared off before racing started, but the weather was dull and chilly.

Since last year the bend past the stand has been improved considerably, and there were no instances of horses running wide. No better finish could be wished for than that for the Dunloe Hurdle, which Single Ben won by a head from Many Ideas, with Limna a short head off third. Many Ideas had been making most of the running, but in the last furlong was joined by Single Ben, while Limna, also coming from behind, joined in the tussle, and it was only in the last stride that Single Ben got his head in front. Kyrat was shaping well at half-way, but ran out, and at about the same stage Cooline Boy fell.

SIR E. GOFF INJURED

Sir Ernest Goff, the rider of the latter, seemed to get a bad fall, and it subsequently transpired that he had sustained a broken collar-bone and several bruises about the body. He is not likely to be seen in the saddle again for some time.

The two-horse race for the Lough Lein Plate was a somewhat tame affair, and it was won in easy style by Mr. S. Hyde's Valstar, a French-bred gelding, who has been in C. Brabazon's stable for only a very short period, and little was known of his form. His sire, Bouleverse, is by The Tetrarch out of Bill and Coo, and Mr. Hyde purchased him at the Newmarket December Sales. This was his first race.

Lucky Fool, who is likely to be a strongly-fancied candidate for the Galway Plate, was an absentee from the field for the Killarney Steeplechase, and, in his absence Orange Swift was made favourite. Mr. W. O. Welpy's gelding duly did backers a turn by winning in easy style. Ringworm, whose rider had to declare 19lb. overweight, was in a long lead after a mile, but, blundering, threw his rider.

FAVOURITE FAILS

Westmeath Star never appeared to hold a winning chance in the Kerry Plate, which fell an easy prey to Humble, the property of Mr. J. H. Curran, of Clashane, Youghal, who had only run once since his outing last year, when he cut himself. Home Industries, who was a better favourite than Full House for the Innisfallen Plate, broke the luck of Henry Harty as trainer by winning in ready style. Details:—

NEWMARKET HINTS FOR TO-DAY

Another good contingent of horses from Newmarket will be sent to Nottingham for the second day. The best of our probables in the Netherfield Selling Plate are Polangrier, Reineta filly and and I prefer the last named, who is well fancied.

Winastep, Lanson and Scotch Woodcock are in good trim for the Ratcliffe Selling Plate, and I have most fancy for WINASTEP.

For the Bolsover we have a couple of strongly fancied candidates in Steel Gray and

and it is only a slight preference that I give the latter, who appears to have returned to her best form.

Her stable companion,

who has been moving in grand style on the training grounds of late, is worth an each-way investment in the Dukeries Plate.

Silver Tassie is a newcomer running in the Clumber Maiden Plate, but Greenroom, having benefited from his two previous races, may be more prominent on this occasion, although I should say that he would be better suited by a more galloping track. I have most faith in

SERENA BLANDISH.

I understand that Carnival Boy may not be among the starters for the Newark Plate unless there is rain overnight. Struggs Hill, Alder Rose, La Mamounia and Caldo are under orders to run. On their Yarmouth form, should again beat Fad, and the danger may be Alder Rose.

STRUGGS HILL

THE LATE MR. S. GREHAN

At a special meeting of the directors of the Limerick Junction Race Company a resolution was passed expressing the deepest sympathy with Major Grehan, R.A., and his sister on the death of their father, Mr. Stephen Grehan, D.L., who had been chairman of the company since its inception in 1914. The directors present at the meeting were Captain W. Molony, Mr. John Kelly and Mr. T. H. Gardner Wallis. Letters regretting their inability to be present were received from Captain C. Moore and Mr. J. J. Parkinson.

CARBINE'S JOCKEY DEAD

CHRISTCHURCH, Monday.

Robert Derrett, the greatest jockey New Zealand has known, has died at his home at Riccarton. His most notable association with racing in New Zealand was with Carbine who later won the Melbourne Cup under 10st. 5lb., and was subsequently sent to England, where he became the sire of Spearmint, who won the Derby.

In his two New Zealand victories Carbine was ridden by Derritt, who, although he recognised in him a game racehorse, did not regard him as a perfect specimen. He considered Trenton a much better horse, and he always regarded Multiform as capable of holding his own in the very best company of any period.

SANDYCOVE WELL BEATEN

NEW CLONTARF FORWARD SCORES THRICE

Last night at Blackrock Baths the Clontarf senior team repeated their performance of last week by scoring seven goals against Sandycove. They played in fine style throughout, but Sandycove held them fairly well until near the interval, after which Clontarf kept play almost constantly in their opponents' half. The new Clontarf forward, J. McCloskey, scored three goals in succession, all well taken.

The Dublin-Dublin University game was more even, the students going under by the odd goal of five.

Clontarf meet Pembroke, also undefeated, at Clontarf Baths to-morrow, and this should prove the best game of the season up to the present.

CLONTARF............ 7 SANDYCOVE............ 0

Clontarf went to the attack at once, but Fagan sent them back. Sandycove attacked, and Fagan shot over. Case passed to Lavery, who scored with a sharp shot, and McCloskey scored a fine goal against odds, the same player putting Clontarf three up. Just on the interval a Clontarf man was taken out, but they went further ahead while a man short in the second half, McCloskey again scoring. O'Grady saved a couple of stiff shots from O'Brien, and Lavery, Maguire and Case added further goals.

Clontarf—K. O'Grady; W. L. M. Maguire, F. Etchingham; M. S. O'Mahony; J. McCloskey, R. N. Case (capt.), and P. J. Lavery.

Play was somewhat scrappy, with Dublin holding a slight advantage in the first half. Hill scored following a penalty, and O'Neill equalised with a nice shot. F. Dowds added Dublin's second. The second half was even, J. Dowds scoring for Dublin and O'Neill for Trinity.

GOLF

BRILLIANT 70 BY MAHON

Qualifying Test for the Open Championship

By a Special Correspondent,

CARNOUSTIE, Monday.

PATRICK MAHON (Royal Dublin) put himself in a comfortable position for qualification to-morrow night when in the Open Championship first qualifying round here to-day he went round in 70. Also on the Burnside course Mr. H. S. Sheals (Malone) had a 76. W. O'Brien (Newlands) had a similar score, William Nolan (Portmarnock) took 79, and P. Stevenson (Royal Portrush) 80. On the medal course, S. Fairweather (Malone), an early starter, had 79.

The leading 140 scorers to-morrow night go into the championship proper.

Mahon tied for third place at the close of to-day's play, as on the medal course Horton Smith (United States) and Aubrey Boomer (St. Cloud) each had 69, and at Burnside Gene Sarazen (United States) and Edward E. Whitcombe (Meyrick Park) tied with Mahon's record 70.

MAHON BEATS HAGEN'S RECORD SCORE

Considering that he had had but one view of the Carnoustie courses (and that on Sunday) Mahon did commendably well to improve upon Walter Hagen's forty-five minutes old Burnside record with 70. Not once was Mahon away from the middle of the fairway or its vicinity, and not once was he in a bunker. Moreover, his performance had to be praised as he accomplished it after starting with a 6. He gave deep consideration to his second shot. Perhaps he overdid the study; at any rate, his shot landed in the Barry Burn, which intersects the links at various places, and, of course, included in the 6 was a penalty shot. He played steady golf for his homeward 33. He holed from the edge of the green at the 524 yards seventeenth for a 4, but that was the only time he got down a long putt. On other occasions his approaches were so accurate that his putting was tackled confidently.

O'Brien had 6's at the first, fourth and seventeenth holes through joining the small army of competitors who had incurred penalties following adventures at the Burn. He had an outward score of 37.

Mr. Sheals emulated Mahon's second championship shot into the burn, and so had a 6 in his 36 for the first nine. Further, he copied the professional's play in that he kept clear of trouble in direction afterwards. Stevenson played erratic golf. He was on the green at the 430 yards' second in two, and yet required 6 for the hole. Out in 39, he had a 5 at the fourth following a penalty for being in the burn, and the trouble recurred at the seventeenth, with 6 going down against him there.

Fairweather was unfortunate in that he was out in the strongest of the wind on the medal course; still, it was his short game that let him down, particularly on his outward half (41). He changed his putter at the tenth, with very little profit, while at the twelfth his drive was almost buried in a soaked patch of the course which twenty-four hours earlier had suffered from a rainstorm lasting many hours.

COTTON OUT OF TOUCH ON THE GREENS

The championship followed so closely upon the Ryder Cup that the international players were short of practice, and seemed content to feel their way round and learn more about this perfect golfing country—Britain's most northerly championship venue. Walter Hagen, who has won the championship four times, played his first full round on the Burnside course and returned a record score of 71. In one round, which occupied two hours and fifty-five minutes, he learned more about Carnoustie than most of his rivals would in twice the time.

Henry Cotton, although he had a score of 73 at Burnside, was by no means happy with his putter, and occasionally he played indifferent shots through the green. At the first he was over-running the hole with his approach putts, and later was short, but once he started holing them he went on doing so and finished happily.

Boomer, the Jersey Islander, from the same nursery which produced Vardon and Ray, started his record round weakly, being short with his approach to the first and taking three putts at the second. After that, however, all he did was good. A seven yards putt for a three at the seventh helped him to complete the most difficult half in 36. A full iron shot to within five feet of the hole at the twelfth gave him an "eagle" 3, and a twelve yards putt went down for a "birdie" 4 at the seventeenth. It was real championship golf, and Boomer made the course look much easier than did the majority of his rivals.

HORTON SMITH'S LAPSE

So did Horton Smith, the American, who stood down at his own request from his country's team in the Ryder Cup match. His short rest has apparently been beneficial, as but for one extraordinary lapse he might well have taken a clear lead. When he laid his tee shot five feet from the hole at the short eighth and holed his putt for a "birdie" 2 a great score appeared probable. He was then four under fours. He drove into the rough at the ninth and, having played a good third to the green, took three putts when most of the spectators expected him to hole the first. He pulled himself together and played like a champion for the rest of the round, except for a sliced brassy shot at the seventeenth. Even then he obtained a par 5, and it was with tremendous confidence that he holed a four-yarder for a 4 at the home hole.

Alfred Padgham, the holder required 78 at Burnside, but he has one round in which to recover. Alfred Perry, the 1935 winner, found his game, as a 72 on the championship links suggests. None of the stars are in any immediate danger of failing to qualify.

E. E. Whitcombe played magnificently through the green and putted so well that he did not take three on any green. A six-yarder at the third and a four yards putt at the fifth helped him to a score which beats that of his father by six strokes. Sam Snead, the American Ryder Cup player, had bad luck at Burnside at the seventh, when he played his partner's ball and was penalised two strokes. The hole cost him seven and he did well to finish in 72.

BOXING

ARTICLES SIGNED BY FARR

TO MEET LOUIS FOR THE WORLD TITLE

The last possible doubt of Tommy Farr fighting Joe Louis for the World Heavy-Weight Championship was removed yesterday, when articles were signed in London for a match between them for the world title in America early in September. The probable date is September 4, and the venue Yankee Stadium, New York.

Mr. Ted Broadribb, Farr's manager, and Mr. Sol Strauss, legal adviser to Mr. Mike Jacobs, the American promoter, met in a hotel, and after four hours' discussion they sent the following cable to Mr. Jacobs:—

"Farr-Louis contract signed for early September within United States. You fix time and venue. Farr receive 20 per cent. gate, picture and radio rights. Option win or lose. Confirm."

Thus a British heavy weight will fight for the world title after a lapse of twenty-nine years. The last time a boxer from Britain had a chance of world honours was when Tommy Burns, after defeating Gunner Moir at the National Sporting Club in December, 1907, beat Jack Palmer at Wonderland in February, 1908. Since then the greatest of all boxing prizes has been the exclusive property of America, with the exception of the brief periods of ownership by Max Schmeling and Primo Carnera.

Farr, who is now in France, will sail for New York on July 21. He will take with him as sparring partner Maurice Strickland, of New Zealand, whom he and his manager consider has a similar style to that of Louis. Mr. Broadribb is to visit a West End cinema this week and study the film of the Louis-Braddock fight, many scenes of which are in slow motion, and which show both the knock-down of Louis in the first round and the final knock-out of Braddock in the eighth.

It is understood that, in addition to the 20 per cent. of the million-dollar gate prophesied by Mr. Strauss, Farr will receive a guarantee, the amount of which has not been revealed.

STATEMENT BY GENERAL CRITCHLEY

Brigadier-General Critchley issued the following statement last night:—

"With reference to the Farr-Schmeling fight, Mr. Sydney Hulls has two contracts, one signed by Farr and one signed by Schmeling, that they will fight in London in August or September at the White City Stadium under his promotion.

"Schmeling has already deposited £5,000 earnest money guaranteeing his appearance. Until such time as one of these two fighters fails to put in an appearance, the contract holds good. Counsel's opinion informs me that these contracts are valid and binding. So far I have no official intimation that either of these two men has any intention of dishonouring his signaure."

LAWN TENNIS

IRISH CHAMPIONSHIPS

Rain Cuts Short the Opening Play at Fitzwilliam

RAIN interfered with the first day's play in the Irish Open Championships at Fitzwilliam Club yesterday, the weather being unpleasantly reminiscent of that which marred last year's championships.

Very little progress was made with the championship events, the combination of rain-soaked courts and a rough sea journey overnight conspiring to keep the cross-Channel competitors out of court.

Miss R. Jarvis, one of the several promising young English players who are taking part in the championships, played her first round match in the Women's Championship against Miss A. Darley, and won 6-4, 6-2. Miss Jarvis won decisively enough in the end, but her young Irish opponent made a really good fight for the first set, serving splendidly and going all out for her forearm shots. Miss Jarvis was inclined to net deep drives to her forearm wing in the early stages of the match; but once she had settled down her game carried too much pace and variety for her opponent.

Both our Davis Cup Singles players were in action; G. L. Rogers was not troubled in beating a local player in R. Buchanan, but T. G. McVeagh had to fight all the way for the first set against C. A. Kemp. Kemp hit some grand passing shots in the early stages, especially on his back-hand wing, but he missed a number of easy chances, especially overhead, and when McVeagh captured the first set at 7-5 Kemp's confidence and touch departed. CRICKET

KENT AND SUSSEX WIN

N. W. Yardley Gets a Century for Cambridge University

SPIN bowlers reaped a rich harvest on a crumbling pitch at Yeovil, where Sussex beat Somerset by 175 runs. Somerset wanted 303 to win, but Hammond was almost unplayable, at one time taking five wickets for 9 runs. Wellard, by some fierce hitting, obtained four 6's and three 4's. Twenty-six wickets fell for 365.

Kent completely outplayed Worcestershire at Worcester, and triumphed by an innings and 110 runs, while at Kettering Northamptonshire face another defeat. Despite a stand of 65 for the eighth wicket between Dunkley, a newcomer to county cricket, and James, they followed on 310 behind Middlesex, and, with five men out, they need 211 to avoid an innings reverse.

Lancashire at one time were in danger of following on against Notts. at Old Trafford, but Paynter and Phillipson added 109.

R. E. S. Wyatt made his highest score in first class cricket and played the biggest individual innings for Warwickshire for 22 years against Derbyshire at Birmingham.

At Lord's Oxford finished 148 behind, with six wickets in hand, against Cambridge Yardley hit up a fine hundred for Cambridge.

TRINITY'S ENGLISH TOUR

SIX WICKETS VICTORY AT MANCHESTER

In the first match of their English tour Dublin University easily defeated a weakened Manchester University side at Fallowfield yesterday by 6 wickets. Manchester batted first on an easy wicket and were dismissed for 110 in just over two hours. With only 14 runs on the board Manchester lost Scholes, who ran himself out. Owen and Lee batted steadily before the latter was dismissed at 43. Three runs late Davy was well caught by Moore. Manchester scored at the rate of a run a minute. Mellor bowled steadily and was the visitors' most successful bowler, taking four wickets for 25 runs, and Short claimed five for 55.

Mahoney and Lytle opened the Dublin University innings and soon had control over the moderate bowling of Davy and Longbottom. They appeared to be set for a formidable stand when Davy was successful with an appeal for leg before against Mahoney. Lytle was joined by Pilkington and they put on 39 runs before Owen dismissed the latter with an easy catch at mid-on. Mellon was out in precisely the same way without a run being added. Lytle had now complete command over the bowlers, and when joined by Moore they carried the total to 89, when Moore was out leg before just before a sharp shower stopped play at 5.30, when tea was taken.

After the interval the rain held off and Lytle and Larmour hit up the required runs to give Dublin University the victory. Longbottom took three wickets for 33 for Manchester. Davy took one for 34.

ULSTER SCHOOLS' FINE RECOVERY

LEINSTER MAKE A POOR START AT RATHMINES

At Rathmines yesterday on a slow, but easy, wicket the Ulster schoolboys in three and a half hour scored 240 and in forty-five minutes got three of the Leinster wickets for 31 runs.

Half the Ulster side were out for 97, but the other batsmen staged a recovery and the last two wickets added 67. J. Wilson headed the list with 51, scored in less than an hour. He hit well all round the wicket and made many pretty shots through the covers. In partnership with C. S. Scott 50 runs were put on for the eighth wicket. The latter batted soundly for 32.

H. A. Eadie, who came on as a first change Ulster bowler, brought about the quick dismissal of the three Leinster batsmen. In four overs he took three wickets for 10.

A resumption will be made this morning at 10.45. Score:—

BRYMBO COLLIERY DISASTER

RESCUE MEN WHO ESCAPED

Harry Bentley, of Talke, and Frederick Salt, of Silverale, the only two men now in the North Staffordshire Royal Infirmary to survive the disaster at the Brymbo Colliery, Chesterton, Stoke-on-Trent, were able yesterday to describe something of their experience, when thirty men lost their lives following explosions and fire at the pit on Friday. Of the dead 27 belonged to rescue parties who went to the aid of three miners.

Bentley said that he descended the pit to help rescue workers. Included in his party were Mr. John Cocks, the joint Managing Director of the Shelton Iron, Steel, and Coal Company, Ltd.; Mr. H. J. Finney, Senior Inspector of Mines; and Mr. J. A. Bloor, Sub-Inspector. "They went along the main cut towards the coal face, and I followed with other men. Mr. Cocks and his party must have been some 200 years ahead when the accident happened." Mr. Bentley said that he could not bring to mind the details of what occurred., neither could he recall an explosion "There must have been fire," he said, "for I was burned about the face and hair. I remember regaining consciousness and finding myself in the pit. I staggered and crawled as well as I could towards the pit bottom, and must have gone 400 yards before I was picked up and taken to the surface."

Sale said that he had no recollection of either explosion or fire.

No further investigations were made in the pit yesterday, and the following statement was posted outside the colliery offices:—"No further explosions have occurred. An analysis of the air from the fan drift shows an improvement."

An inquest on four victims of the disaster was opened at Newcastle-under-Lime yesterday, and adjourned for a fortnight, and an inquest on eight others was opened and adjourned at Stoke-on-Trent.

KILLED AT LEVEL CROSSING

Jack Lamb, of Harrogate, received fatal injuries when he drove his lorry across the accommodation level crossing on the Derwent Valley Light Railway at Osbaldwick, near York, yesterday, just as a train was approaching. The lorry was struck by the engine in the middle of the driver's cabin and carried for some sixty yards, the track being torn up before the train could be stopped.

The driver and fireman of the train, which was hauling two trucks filled with cattle, were unhurt.

R.A.F. 'PLANE CRASHES INTO HOUSE

Just before his R.A.F. aeroplane crashed into a house in Woodlands avenue, Coombe Hill, New Malden, Surrey, last night, the pilot jumped by parachute and landed in a tree in an adjoining field.

Miss Margot Baker told a reporter that the 'plane suddenly lurched in mid-air. "There was a terrific crash when the propeller hit the side of the roof of the house and the machine fell like a stone into the front garden," she said. "Parts of the 'plane were flung into the road, and people who rushed to the scene stumbled over wires and pieces of wreckage. The roof of the house was badly damaged in one corner."

The occupants of the house were out at the time.

LONDON QUIET

KAFFIRS WEAK

Owing to the continued uncertainty surrounding foreign political affairs, and the fact that Wall street was closed for the Independence Day holiday, little expansion in activity was witnessed on the London Stock Markets when the new account commenced yesterday. A notable feature was provided by the start of dealings in the new Blyvooruitzicht 10s. shares at 3s. prem., but otherwise uninteresting conditions prevailed, and prices tended to droop because of the sustained lack of support. The Kaffir section, which was depressed by sales from the Continent in the late trading, showed several rather heavy falls, and among Industrials International Teas and British Home Stores were lower by substantial amounts.

BRITISH FUNDS.

Although quiet, Gilt-edged securities were able to maintain a fairly steady tone at the outset, and, consequently, investment demand during the afternoon lifted quotations for one or two of the leading stocks. The outstanding movement, however, was a sharp rise in L.C.C. 3½ p.c. from ½ dis. to 1/16 dis.

FOREIGN BONDS.

Interest in Foreign Bonds was still restricted, but with an improvement in the political situation in the Far East Japanese Bonds were able to stage a good recovery. German Bonds attracted chief attention in the European group, and both the Dawes and Young issues added ½. A similar advance was marked in French Fours.

RAILS.

Idle conditions ruled in the Rail departments, and the small turnover in British Stocks resulted from sales. Southerns were out of favour, London Transport "C" sustained a sharp set-back, and L.M.S. Ord. eased off. Excepting a gain in Antofagasta Ord., Foreign Rails were without movement, while Colonials drooped under the lead of Colonials. Dealings in American Rails were small, but quotations advanced up on the latest developments in the U.S. labour situation.

INDUSTRIALS.

Demand for Industrials was limited and extremely selective, but the market as a whole displayed a steady tendency, and few unfavourable movements assumed large proportions. The news that De Havilland is to issue new Ordinary Shares resulted in a setback in the existing shares; but other Aircrafts, together with Engineering and Iron and Steel issues, held up well. Brewery and Tobacco Shares also moved narrowly, and little change occurred in quotations in the Shipping and Textile sections. Trans-Atlantics formed one of the few bright spots, though early gains were not fully maintained. On the other hand, the Stores Group turned dull, and weakness developed in some of the leading Electrical Equipment and Building descriptions.

MINES.

Apart from dealings in the new West Wits. subsidiary, little of interest transpired among Mines, and in the absence of support Kaffirs quickly reflected Paris selling. West Africans followed the lead of the neighbours, but rather more activity occurred in Copper Shares, and the leading Rhodesian issues showed an all-round improvement.

THE MONEY MARKET

CONDITIONS QUIET

Gold dealings yesterday were again on a small scale. There were about 50 bars, of the approximate value of £140,000, disposed of. The price was 140s. 6d. per fine ounce, being unchanged from Saturday. A discount of 1d. was shown on the dollar rate of 4.94.60.

Silver was steady, with spot at 19⅞d. per ounce, and two months' forward at 19 15/16d. per ounce.

Money was in quiet demand, daily loans being 10s. per cent. Three months' bills were 11s. 3d. per cent.

Persistent demand for the free franc was once more in evidence yesterday when the French authorities again took the opportunity of offering ready supplies near the pegged rate. The franc was again permitted to appreciate to a fractional extent in terms of sterling, thus confirming views previously expressed in London that the probable course of action would be to encourage repatriation by a gradual restoration of faith in the recuperative powers of the currency. The American dollar continued to fall against the pound yesterday, and, in some quarters, this movement was attributed to the fact that, aside from the commercial and speculative covering of short position recently in evidence, there is now a disposition to repatriate French funds from New York.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

STORES ISSUES MARKED DOWN

With international politics still the predominant factor, the Industrial market yesterday started the new account with a very uncertain showing. Business was reduced to almost nominal dimensions, and prices continued to sag. A much firmer tone ruled among the Anglo-Americans, despite the long New York holiday, and several good gains resulted. U.S. Steels were in good demand on encouraging earnings estimates, putting on 2¼ to 103¾, while International Nickels were ⅞ to the good at 59½.

The announcement of the reduction in the steel import duty cannot be said to have had much influence on the Iron and Steel section. Business was again on an extremely small scale, and few changes of importance were recorded. Firmness was displayed by the Tube investments, a steady demand for which raised the price 1s. 3d. to 83s. 3d.

AIRCRAFTS DULL.

A generally dull tone prevailed among the Aircrafts, the chief movement being a fall of 3/16 in De Havillands to 2⅜ on the proposed new capital issue. Imperial Airways declined 9d. to 34s. 3d. pending dealings in the new shares. Business among the Motors was reduced to almost nominal dimensions.

Electrical Equipments presented an uncertain appearance, and the tone was easier. British Insulated Cables lost 1/16, as did Enfields.

The Brewery section was almost wholly neglected, the few changes recorded being of minor importance. The Tobacco section was also quiet, "Bats" and "Imps" being each fractionally lower.

STORES WEAK.

In the Stores group Woolworths came on offer and fell 2s. to 71s. 6d., British Home Stores sagged heavily, losing a similar amount at 13s. 6d. Marks and Spencers also made a poor showing at 3 7/16.

Among Provision and Catering issues Unilever rallied somewhat to 39s. 7½d. and the N.V. to 42s. 3d. International Tea, however, closed 1s. 3d. lower on balance at 15s. ex div., following the poor results. Textiles did not prove particularly active and the tone remained dull. Among Rayons Courtaulds closed 4½ down. British Celanese were the turn off, while Canadian Celanese lost 1/16. The American issue provided an exception, improving to 7 5/16.

A generally dull tone prevailed among the Shipping issues, but losses in most cases were unimportant.

Very little support was forthcoming for Miscellaneous issues and prices drifted to lower levels. British Oxygens lost another 1/16. Turner and Newall declined 3/16, and Imperial Chemicals were a few pence down.

STEADY CLOSE IN OILS

Quiet conditions characterised the start of business in Oil shares for the new account. In the arrangement of the final details of the carry-over nothing of special interest transpired. The general charge for the continuation of bargains was again 4/5ths p.c. There were takers-in of most shares, and particularly of Shells. Internationals were again governed mainly by dealings on Paris account. Although steady to firm at the start, prices gave way when selling orders were received from French operators. Later, however, the selling ceased, and in its place moderate purchases were in progress. Prices hardened towards the close, and at the end were quite firm.

RUBBERS INACTIVE

Similar conditions existed in the Rubber Share Market yesterday to those which have obtained on recent days, and, if anything, business was on an even smaller scale, because of the disappointing behaviour of the commodity. Favourable attention was directed to very few issues, and usually support was insufficient to affect quotations. At the finish the vast majority of shares were unaltered, and the only noteworthy movement was a gain of 7½d. to 46s. 3d. in Kuala Lumpur. The commodity section was quiet, with spot rubber selling at 9½d. per lb. U.K. stocks of rubber declined by 356 tons last week.

FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS

De Haviland Capital to be Doubled

To finance an increase in the company's activities, the directors of De Haviland Aircraft Company propose to raise the capital from £600,000 to £1,200,000, and to issue 200,000 new £1 shares. They will be offered to shareholders at a price of 40s. each.

Coming Announcements

A number of interesting company announcements are looked for in the course of the next week or so, and included in the list are the following:—Courtaulds interim, Distillers Company report, further Banking interims, Johannesburg Consolidated dividend, Bristol Aeroplane accounts, Scribbans and Co. results, E. K. Cole results, George Bassett and Co. accounts, A. F. Stoddard and Co. dividend, National Canning results. Later in the month will come the Furness Withy results, the Imperial Tobacco interim, and the half-yearly statements of the British railways.

Rise in Flour Prices

London flour millers raised the price of flour yesterday by 1s. per sack to 43s. 6d.

National Bank

The next half-yearly general meeting of the proprietors of the National Bank, Limited, will be held at the office of the bank, 34 College Green, Dublin, on Thursday, the 29th inst., at 12 noon. At this meeting the directors will submit their report and balance sheet for the half-year to 30th June, 1937. The books of the bank for the registration of transfer deeds (both in London and Dublin) will be closed on Monday, 12th July, 1937, and will so remain until after Saturday, 24th.

Reserve Bank of India

Sir James Baird Taylor, C.I.E., has been appointed Governor of the Reserve Bank of India, with effect from 1st July, 1937.

Paris Commodity Market to Re-open

The commodity exchanges, which have been closed since last Tuesday as a precaution against speculation on the fall of the franc, are to reopen to-day.

Still Working on the Wrong Side

Beyer, Peacock and Co., locomotive builders, have again been working on the wrong side during the past year, though the net loss of £2,456 recorded in the directors' report for the past year compares with a loss of £13,753 and much bigger losses still for 1934 and 1933. The aggregate debit balance is now £73,886. It is so far satisfactory to learn, however, that since the end of the past year there has been some further improvement in demand, and that prospects for the current year's trading are better than at any time during the past six years.

LONDON MINING MARKET

KAFFIRS REMAIN DULL

It cannot be said that conditions in the Mining market showed any material improvement on the resumption of business yesterday. Political uncertainties were, no doubt, responsible for the continued apathy of the public, and although the open account, as disclosed at the carry-over, has been reduced to very small proportions, dealers were disinclined to increase commitments. That uncertainty exists is evident from the reception given to the Blyvoornitzicht issue. Dealings in the 10s. Shares of this West Wit. subsidiary, which has been launched under the most powerful auspices, duly started at about 12s. 9d., and then fell to 12s. 6d., this indicating the apathy of the public. As Paris and the Cape were small sellers of their specialities, the market, as a whole, presented a dull and uninteresting appearance at the close.

Rhodesians were equally idle, but owing to the general improvement in commodity prices the level of values of Copper descriptions was slightly above that ruling at the close of last week.

On the falling-off in the demand for the stones, Diamonds were easier inclined, and, apart from De Beers Preference, which were a half-crown better, prices where altered were lower. Closing prices:—

WINNIPEG GRAINS

Wheat opened irregular, 1/8c. up to 1 1/4c. down. After some hesitancy the market declined on disappointing cables, but then advanced sharply on general buying and on advices of high temperatures in Saskatchewan and Alberta, with only scattered showers reported. The rise was further influenced by fears of an extension of the drought area. The market then became quiet, with prices easing under local profit-taking and indications of cooler weather and some showers. Traders were cautious pending the attitude of the United States markets after the holiday. The close was steady, with quotations unchanged to 3/8c. lower. Opening options—July, 149 (144); Oct., 138 1/2 (136); Dec., 135 3/4 (133 3/8). Closing options—July, 148 5/8 (148 7/8); Oct., 139 3/4 (139 3/4); Dec., 136 1/2 (136 7/8).

GYMNASIUM ACCIDENT

GIRL'S ACTION AGAINST SCHOOL

A schoolgirl's action for damages against a school of which she was formerly a pupil, based on injury she received while undergoing gymnastic instruction in October, 1935, failed at Chester Assizes yesterday. Miss Nancy Constance Patterson (20), of Holmleigh, Wistaston, Nantwich, a former pupil of the Queen's School, Chester, brought an action against the governors, the headmistress and the gymnastic mistress.

Mr. Justice Greaves-Lord gave judgment for the defendants with costs. "This is a very regrettable accident," he said, "but I am afraid I would be going further than I ought to do if I said that this school was liable."

Counsel for Miss Patterson described the exercise in which she was injured as a particularly dangerous one. The gymnasium floor was highly polished, he said, and, in performing the exercise, which included a vault, Miss Patterson injured her right hand, and could not now do any work which needed the proper use of both hands.

An orthopædic specialist stated that Miss Patterson's right hand was wasted and she could lift only a 5lb. weight with it; whereas, with the left, she could lift 16lb.

Miss Hallett, physical training inspectress to the Liverpool education authority, described the exercise as a simple and very common one.

WOOL

BRADFORD.—Fair amount of business has been done in fine tops, but it has been mainly a case of picking up cheap lots before opening of London sales. Quotations are firm. Spinners are in need of work to prevent further curtailment of output, but they are not disposed to make further concessions on quoted rates.

The following average prices were obtained at the clearing-up wool sales held at Brisbane last week. Greasy wool £20 4/6 a bale and 15.52 pence a pound. Scoured wool £21 10/1 a bale and 26.16 pence a pound.

KILLED BY AN ORANGE ARCH

STRUCTURE FELL ON AGED WOMAN

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

Mrs. Mary Walker, aged 76 years, of 54 Cuba street, Belfast, was killed instantly this morning when an Orange arch, erected for the 12th July celebrations, at the entrance to Cable street, Newtownards road, collapsed and fell on her. The arches usually contain a wooden structure to represent the "Gates of Derry," and it is stated that Mrs. Walker stopped to admire the arch as she was entering Cable street. The structure gave way, and, before she could draw back, the wooden portion of the arch struck her on the head. She was taken in the Ambulance to the Royal Victoria Hospital, but on arrival was found to be dead.

COURT REPORTERS ON STRIKE

SEQUEL TO LONDON MAN'S DISMISSAL

The following statement was issued last night by the Press Association:—The refusal to-day of the reporters employed jointly by the Press Association and the Exchange Telegraph Company to carry out their duties at the Royal Courts of Justice had its origin in the non-reporting for the London and provincial Press generally of an important case which came before Mr. Justice Hawke on June 3, 4, 7 and 8. This case was of great interest to every motorist in the country, every insurance company dealing in motor policies, and to the legal world.

The reporter concerned was seen by the editor-in-chief of the Press Association, who, satisfied that his professional honour was not involved, but dissatisfied with his explanation, offered him the opportunity of tendering his resignation. Upon the reporter declining to resign, the editor-in-chief gave him the customary notice to terminate his engagement at the end of the present law term.

A meeting of the Law Courts Branch of the National Union of Journalists followed, and the Acting General Secretary of the union approached the editor-in-chief to receive a deputation consisting of himself and the Chairman of the branch.

DEPUTATION QUESTION

The editor-in-chief replied that the whole matter was being considered by his Board the following Tuesday, July 6, and declined to anticipate that meeting by receiving a deputation. At the same time, he was willing to place before the Board any representations which the union representatives might care to put into writing on behalf of the reporter. This invitation was not accepted.

To-day, Monday, July 5, at five minutes past ten—twenty-five minutes before the Courts were due to sit—the branch chairman handed a notice to the two chiefs of the joint law service. This stated that no member of the joint staff would begin work until the editor-in-chief agreed to meet to-day the representatives of the union, who had asked to see him and to re-open the question of the determination of the reporter's engagement.

The editor-in-chief again declined, repeating that his board were considering the whole matter to-morrow. Thereupon reporters refused to carry out their customary duties, thus breaking their contracts.

The situation was considered at a special meeting of the Press Association Board this afternoon. It was decided that the board could take no action while the men persisted in breach of their agreements, but that a deputation would be received by the officers of the Association and the E.T.C. when the men resumed their duties.

WORLD PROBLEMS AND CHRISTIANITY

NATIONAL BROTHERHOOD SPEECHES

The Rev. William Paxton, of London, who was installed as the president of the National Brotherhood at the annual conference at Lancaster, said that it required a great deal of courage to enunciate the principles of the brotherhood to-day and to believe that there was really any hope of them being applied to the life of the world. It was an unfortunate fact that the line of demarcation between many Christians and the world was worn so thin that it could be seen only under the microscope. They were in desperate need in the State, as in the Church, of that kind of leadership which was not calculated on popularity, but only on the value of truth.

Mr. Isaac Foot, the retiring brotherhood president, said that there were people who were telling them to-day that the only solution of their problems was to be found in war. They of the brotherhood did not believe it.

Dr. Maude Royden, the new national president of the sisterhood, said in her presidential address that it was for us to try to bring the nations of the world into conference, not about armaments, but about food, clothing, and all those things which made life civilised. When there was starvation in one place and destruction of food in another there would be trouble, and unless that was put right there would be war, and no amount of pious platitudes would stop it.

ELM TREE DANGER TO THE PUBLIC

An inquest jury in London yesterday recommended that branches of trees, especially of elms, projecting over public pathways, should be subjected to special supervision.

The inquest was on Mrs. Florence M. Prowse (55), widow, of Upland road, East Dulwich, who was killed when a thirty-foot branch of an elm tree, weighing more than half-a-ton, fell in the avenue in Peckham Rye Park last week.

A verdict of accidental death was returned.

An L.C.C. tree-pruner said that the branch had rotted in the centre, but an examination would not have shown it. Elm trees were more liable to break in still weather than in a heavy gale.

HUSK OR HOOSE OF CATTLE

HISTORY AND SYMPTOMS

Parasitic worms in the bronchial tubes and lung substance frequently cause a serious condition in cattle, sheep and goats. The term hoose or husk is applied to the disease because of the peculiar spasmodic husky cough—the chief symptom of the disease.

SYMPTOMS.

In the early stages affected animals cough only occasionally, but later, through remaining on the same pasture and so becoming more heavily infected, long fits of coughing may be noticed, accompanied by distressed breathing. Animals may fall down during fits of coughing. The worms irritate the tubes with the result that a mucus discharge is produced to such an extent that it blocks the bronchi completely and death results from suffocation. The animals fall off in condition, appetite is variable, diarrhœa may be observed and the coat is rough or the fleece dry. If no steps are taken to stamp out the disease by removing the animals from infected pastures, death frequently occurs 2-5 months after appearance of the symptoms.

PORT-MORTEM FINDINGS.

Bronchi are found blocked with mucous in which many worms may be found. Pneumonic patches may be seen in the lung substance. In sheep, some parts present a nodular appearance with yellowish areas up to one inch in diameter.

OCCURRENCE.

There are two kinds of worms which cause verminous bronchitis in young cattle, sheep, and goats; animals over 12 months are seldom affected. The species which causes verminous pneumonia is not found in cattle, and is commoner in mature sheep and goats than in young animals.

These diseases may be seen at any time of the year, but are most prevalent in the spring and summer. The severest cases occur in September and October. Damp pastures and over-stocking greatly increase the risk of infection.

LIFE HISTORY OF WORMS.

Worms are one to four inches long, and are white and thread-like. The adults are found in the bronchial tubes where the female lays large numbers of eggs, which hatch immediately, liberating minute larvæ. These larvæ make their way to the wind-pipe, and from there to the throat, whence they may be expelled by coughing or they are swallowed to pass out with the droppings. They remain on the ground for four to fourteen days before they are able to infect any animal which may pick them up while grazing. Certain requirements of heat and moisture must be met before the young worms can develop on the ground, and during development they moult twice. After second moult they are very resistant to cold and drought, as well as to such substances as bluestone, lime and salt, which may be applied to the land to kill them. Most will die if not picked up by a grazing animal, but some can live on the ground for a year or more.

During the night and when the grass is heavy with dew or rain these larvæ climb up the blades of grass to facilitate their being eaten by an animal, but during sunshine they return to the soil. When swallowed by a grazing animal they reach the stomach, where they develop further, and finally they gain entrance to the lungs probably by way of the blood stream and develop into adult worms.

PREVENTION.

Worms must be present in large numbers before the disease becomes evident, and, as the worms do not multiply in the body, every one must be picked up with the food. Hence the great danger of overcrowding on pasture land, which greatly increases the risk of infection. Wet pastures also favour the spread of the disease, and this point must not be neglected. Older stock should be put on ground known to be infested. If pasture land is known to be infected with sheep lung worm only it may be grazed by cattle of any age and vice versa. It is good practice to change the stock on a piece of ground from time to time, and mixed grazing is to be preferred to grazing with only one kind of stock. If ground is only moderately infested, animals should be kept indoors until the dew has lifted. By this time the larvæ have descended into the soil again and the risk of infection is greatly decreased. With badly-infested land the only course to be taken is the removal of all susceptible animals for a period of at least one year. Manure from places where infected animals are housed at night should be allowed to make for a time before it is used. The heat kills the larvæ, but even then such manure should only be used on arable land.—(Mr. E. Macnab in the Essex Farmers' Journal.)

SOVIET "WRECKERS" SHOT

ALLEGED TROTSKYITES IN SIBERIA

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MOSCOW, Monday.

Another group of 22 "wreckers" have been executed at Vladivostok, in Far Eastern Siberia. They were alleged to be "Trotzkyist" agents connected with the Japanese Intelligence Service, and were accused of wrecking railways in the Far East.

Announcement of the executions was carried only in the Khabarovsk newspaper, Pacific Ocean Star, of June 27.

SOME CANDIDATES' VIEWS

"SETTLE ECONOMIC WAR"

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

MARYBOROUGH, Monday.

Speaking to a meeting of his supporters after the declaration of the result of the Leix-Offaly election, Mr. W. Davin (Labour) said that the increase of over 4,000 in the Labour vote in the constituency since the last election could be taken as an expression of dissatisfaction by the unemployed, the organised workers and the small farmers at the failure of the Government to make an honest attempt to solve the problem of unemployment, as well as to take effective steps to control the prices of the necessaries of life.

It was also evident that all classes of the community were anxious to secure a just and honourable settlement of the financial dispute with Britain. He hoped that the leaders and members of all parties would now join together for that purpose, and make it clear to the British Cabinet that there was no difference of opinion here on that vital question. A private conference of representatives of the three principal parties should be summoned for an early date to find the best means to secure such a settlement.

"FLAGRANT ABUSES"

Dr. Sean Tubridy, speaking after the result of the poll was declared in the West Galway election, said that he had stood there before, both in victory and defeat, and he took his present victory in the same spirit as he had previously accepted defeat.

Mr. Corbett regretted, he said, that he had seen the most flagrant abuses in party politics and the total disregard for the eighth Commandment. Voters were not asked to support the Fianna Fail candidates, but individuals. It was possible that his 1916 record was his worst recommendation, but he was in good company; for many good 1916 men were also defeated in this election. However, there would be another to-morrow.
